BOMBARD BESIEGED CITY AGAIN

SOFIA, Feb. 5.—6 P. M.—The bombardment of Adrianople by the Bulgarians and Servians is reported to have been renewed late today after Djaket Pasha, the Turkish commander in the besieged city, had sent out a note refusing to surrender.

The ammonade was resumed 24 hours before the time for the twenty-four hour armistice to expire.

It is expected the Bulgarians may try to take the outer fortresses by assault tonight.

Fierce Battle Raging.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 5.—Fierce fighting is going on between Turkish and Bulgarian troops at Gallipoli, at the southern end of the Dardanelles. A wireless message received today stated that the Bulgarians had taken up a strong position overlooking the town and were shelling it from the Turkish ranks. Turkish artillery replied, but their shells did little damage to the Bulgarians.

Hundreds of Turks are said to have been killed or wounded, as the attack of the Bulgarians was most desperate. Reinforcements are being sent on Turkish transports through the Dardanelles.

Gallipoli is a strategic point of great importance because of its defensive position for the entrance of the Dardanelles. It contains a mighty citadel with thick bronze about the town and is defended by heavy artillery.

Turks Profess Confidence.

Grand Vizier Mahmud Shevket Pasha went to Tchatalja, the headquarters of the defense of this city today and conferred with Army officers. Upon his return he issued the following statement:

"Common patriotism has again united the splendid forces of Turkey along the Tchatalja fortifications. Discord has been forgotten in the moment of danger from a foreign foe. The Turkish troops stand shoulder to shoulder; as brothers ready to repel invasion from the enemy. Our position along the Tchatalja lines is much stronger now than it ever was. We believe the works cannot be taken. The epidemic of cholera which caused such havoc in our ranks has greatly reduced and but few new cases are reported daily."

Turks Promise Surprise.

An important military movement has been begun by the Turkish war office which, the Turks assert, will surprise the world. Enver Bey, the new chief of staff, who is now in command of the Turkish armies, refused to say what brilliant coup was planned, but declared that it was a movement of "magnificent proportions."

Although the Bulgars ceased combatting they were not idle. Between midnight and dawn a battery of seven-inch siege guns was moved a mile and a half nearer the line of defensive forts. The guns were mounted and raised on what their shells would fall into both forts and the city.

General Savoff, the Bulgarian commander-in-chief, has massed all the available forces that can be spared from Adrianople across the Tchatalja lines, to prevent the Turks from breaking through the Bulgar ranks and going to the relief of Adrianople.

A Constantinople telegram stated that skirmishing was going on between the Turks and Bulgarians at Tchatalja. A Bulgarian attachment attacked and burned a Turkish village lying between Hadenkeui and Lake Derkos, 15km withdrew.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The British Foreign Office has received a telegram from Corfus which charges that Mussulman Albanians are sweeping the country in the Delvino district of Albania with fire and sword.

Forty-two villages are reported to have been d troyed and all the Christian inhabitants killed. According to a telegram received by the Turkish Embassy, the Bulgarian attack upon Adrianople yesterday was checked with such heavy loss of life that the Bulgars were glad to grant a twenty-four-hour armistice. The Bulgars tried to storm the Turkish forts on the eastern side of the city, but were driven back, leaving hundreds of dead and dying upon the field.

SHINE THREATENS, FORM RESCUE CORPS

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The Seine has reached rise in the danger level. The authorities are taking precautions for an emergency. Rescue parties have been organized.

BROWN CHARGES LOAN CO. TRIED TO BRIBE HIM

E. Gerry Brown, supervisor of small loans agencies, declared at a hearing before the legislative committee on Public Service today, that an official of the Chattel Loan Company had "approached" him last year. Mr. Brown said that he was told that if he regulated the rates of interest that the company might be charged to the satisfaction of the company there would be no doubt but what he would receive an increase in salary from the Legislature.

"This was last year," declared Mr. Brown. "Shortly after the statement was made to me I learned that a bill had been introduced in the Legislature to increase my salary, signed by the accountant for the Chattel Loan Company—the company who violated the laws more than any other similar corporation, whose officials more than those of any other company deserved to be classed as "loan sharks."

Supervisor Brown appeared before the committee today at a hearing on his own bill providing for an increase of his salary to $5,000 a year. He is receiving $2,500 a year at present.

There was no opposition at today's hearing on the bill. Several urged in favor, among them being Justice T. Aarchetti, who was one of the leaders in the fight for the anti-loan shark bill, so-called, which created the position of supervisor of small loans, and by President Cobb of the Chattel Loan Company.

FOSS MAY INTERFERE IN STRIKE

Governor Foss declared today that if the parties in the garment workers' strike did not petition the State Board of Arbitration to arbitrate their difficulties, he would then have jurisdiction in the matter, and intimated that after waiting a reasonable time he might interfere. He said:

Under the law it is necessary before the board can act for the parties to the controversy to petition for arbitration. If the parties refuse to do this, it is within my province to direct the board to act.

I believe, therefore, it is wise to wait a while before taking any action, in the hope that the conflicting parties will see that this is right and submit their differences to the board.

Public welfare demands a quick ending of the controversy and the parties concerned should show their public interest by submitting their differences to the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration for a settlement.

According to Private Secretary Sherman, Governor Foss has followed the course of the strike carefully.

Strikers Ready to Arbitrate.

The striking garment workers today informed the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration that they were willing to meet the board at any time the manufacturers agreed to such a meeting.

Samuel Zorn, chairman of the strike committee, stated that if the board wished to investigate strike conditions as suggested by Governor Foss the strikers were prepared to prove that an average wage of less than $4 a week had been earned by women and girls during the past year, while $10 a week would be a high average for the men following that calling.

The strike leaders refused to commit themselves, however, stating to the representatives of the board that the question should not be raised until the manufacturers had stated their position.

Calls were issued today for a mass meeting of the 1200 women and girls involved in the strike among the 5500 now out at Americs Hall, No. 724 Washington street, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The Women's Trade Union League, made up to wealthy women and trade unionists, has been asked to assist in furnishing speakers for the meeting.

Governor Foss was expected to take a hand today in the settling of the garment workers' strike. It was believed by all connected with the strike that the Governor would officially request the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to investigate and determine which side is at fault, what steps shall be taken to settle the trouble and then report to him.

Girl Strikers on Picket Duty.

Girl strikers on picket duty with their men sympathizers at the Devonshire street joint of Scott & Co., Limited, succeeded in almost completely tying that establishment up today.

The union officers in charge of the garment workers' strike later declared that with the tie-up of this shop every house in the city had been brought into line.

Sixteen of the one hundred and eighty places affected by the original strike order of the United Garment Workers last Monday morning, all engaged in the manufacture of clothing for men and boys, have granted the concessions asked for by the union. This gives about a hundred back to work and leaves 5,300 still on strike.

A strike vote will be taken tonight at a mass meeting of the raincoat workers, affiliated with the Industrial Workers of the World. These number more than eight hundred. It is expected that they will present their demands to their employers tomorrow and, if they are not accepted, a strike call will be issued.

10,000 More May Strike.

There is a strong possibility that the Ladies' Garment Workers will strike. If

Make Pardon Hearings Public, Says Denny; Drop Old-Time Rule

Councillor Daniel E. Denny of Worcester wants all Pardon Committee hearings of the Council ACTUALLY AND HONESTLY PUBLIC. Why not have meetings of the Council itself also public, Mr. Denny and members of the Council? Why not abolish that relic of the days of star chamber legislation, Rule 11, which says:

Rule 11—All sessions of the Council shall be held with closed doors, and its proceedings shall be kept from the public, upon request of the Governor, or vote of the Council, until final action is taken.

DENNY SCORES THE SECRECY OF COUNCIL WORK

Councillor Daniel E. Denny of Worcester made a vigorous protest to the pardon committee of the Governor's Council today against insufficient notice to councillors and public on pardon petitions.

He objected to the public to be informed, when the councillors themselves do not know ahead.

With emphasis the Worcester councillor declared:

"The Council will avoid criticism, derided as it has been in the past, if it brings about a change."

Shea Case a Sample.

This was taken as a reference to the Boston AMERICAN'S expose of the pardon case of Dr. Alfred T. Shea. In that case the Council, without giving due notice to the District Attorney's office, set itself up as a court at law and declared Dr. Shea "innocent," after he had been legally convicted.

Councillor Denny is a Republican and a member of the pardon committee of the Council. That committee went into session today at 10:30 to consider the pardon petition of Cardenio F. King, which has been given wide publicity, and, as it developed, four other pardon petitions also. One of these was a petition for release of Charles Alberto, the Holyoke wife murderer.

When the Alberto petition was brought up, the first one, Councillor Denny said:

"I came here today and did not have four new pardon cases to consider. I didn't know anything about them and none of the other members of the Council did.

Now, it doesn't appear just right to me that these cases should be considered without some notice being given ahead, so that all parties interested may be heard.

We have our doors here open for a public hearing, but the method of procedure means almost a private hearing. If members of the council themselves do not know a case is to be heard by them until they come in here for the regular weekly meeting, what opportunity has the public at large to know and what chance has anybody, who might wish to favor or oppose the granting of a pardon, to be heard, unless he is in direct touch with some counsel or someone else interested in the case?

Wants Public Notified.

The council will avoid criticism, heralded as it is in the past, if it brings about a change.

I suggest we confer with the Governor so that we, ourselves, may know ahead just what pardon petitions are to be acted upon and then have notice given to the public, something after the style of legislative hearings, so that anybody interested in a proposed pardon may come before us and be heard.

Legislative hearings are advertised and, though Councillor Denny did not use the word "advertise" in respect to pardons, the suggestion he made would seem to mean that.

The others on the pardon committee served with Councillor Denny. No vote was taken, but there was a tacit understanding that the matter would be brought before the full council, which assembled at 3 o'clock.

NEW PLAN FOR KING'S PAROLE

When the pardon committee of the Governor's Council went into session at 10:30 o'clock today Lieutenant-Governor Walsh, as chairman of the committee, was ready to submit a new proposition in the case of Cardenio F. King. The proposition is this: That King be released on parole, providing that he shall not engage in any brokerage or promoting business and shall report to a probation officer like any other paroled man.

Under the State law a prisoner may be paroled after serving two-thirds of his sentence, providing he reports to a probation officer once a month and does not violate the law again.

Whether King, in view of his hampered pledges, would be required to report once a month or not is a question.

Governor Foss favors a parole for King, with the conditions last. If he recovers health he shall work out the unexpired balance of his term.

Sylvia Pankhurst Given 14 Days and Threatens Stabbing

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the leader of the violent suffragettes, was arraigned in police court today on a charge of disorderly conduct growing out of the riot raid on Parliament.

Miss Pankhurst was one of the most unruly women ever arraigned for feminist violence. She refused to answer in any questions and threatened to stab a police lassi with her hatpin if he laid hands on her.

In response to questions by the court she stated her name and called: "Votes for Women!" A number of her followers were in court with banners inscribed "Give Women Votes" and other similar mottoes. One woman screamed, "We will make London hell if the government doesn't give us votes."

Miss Pankhurst was sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment, with the option of a $10 fine. She was led from the dock shouting that she would not serve a second one would rise pay a fine.

It was found that suffragettes during the night had smeared a gruesome picture of a skull and crossbones with white wash upon the door of Chancellor Lloyd George's office.

Miss Pankhurst declared that if the authorities compelled her to serve her sentence she would go on a hunger strike.

Clara Lambert, another Pankhurst militant, was arraigned charged with smashing the windows in the office of the Alien Steamship Line, and another case of Ethel Sinding action was taken in the case of Clara Pendred, another member of the violence squad, who broke windows in the West End.

John C. Fremont and George Hearst for Hall of Fame

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 5.—Senator A. Caminetti today selected General John C. Fremont, "The Pathfinder," and George Hearst, pioneer and later United States Senator, as the two names as "builders of the West," should have niches in the Hall of Fame at the national Capitol.

He introduced a resolution appropriating $50,000 for the purchase of statues of these two men.

BRADLEY MARTIN DIES OF PNEUMONIA IN LONDON HOME

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Bradley Martin, a well-known American millionaire, died at his London residence in Chesterfield Gardens this afternoon of pneumonia.

Mr. Martin was seventy-two years old. He was born in Albany, N. Y., and studied law, but never practiced. Mr. Martin was a first lieutenant in the New York National Guard and saw service in the field for a short time in the Civil War, when he commanded a regiment. He has lived in England for more than eight years. His daughter, Lady Craven, having married an English nobleman.

MISS NELLIE M. DOANE, nurse, who was today awarded verdict in suit for slander against Mrs. Ethel Hooper Grew of Marlboro street, a sister-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan.

NURSE DOANE AWARDED $500 IN SLANDER SUIT

Miss Nellie M. Doane, nurse for children, was today awarded $500 by the jury in her suit for slander against Mrs. Ethel Hooper Grew of No. 234 Marlboro street, sister-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan.

The jury retired at 11 o'clock this morning and brought in the verdict at 1 p. m. Miss Doane said for $2,000. She claimed that Mrs. Grew told several people that Miss Doane had slapped, spanked and abused the Grew baby.

Arguments were made by counsel this morning before Judge Bell in the Superior Court of Suffolk County. Attorney Alexander Whiteside made the usual formal motions that the case be taken from the jury. This was denied, and Attorney John H. Casey proceeded for the plaintiff.

MYSTERY IN $12,000 TIN BOX

The work of tracing the money stolen from the National City Bank of Cambridge by George W. Coleman and lost by him to the Walsh-Keliher gang of confidence men is continued today. It is declared that Mr. Martin Walsh has been found and that she will be brought forward to answer questions as to what became of the money so lay her husband from Coleman.

Keliher is assisting John L. Bates, receiver of the bank, and has furnished him names and addresses of persons whom Keliher believes know where the loot from the bank is hidden.

District Attorney Pelletier today examined why Keliher was able to know that Coleman testified before the Grand Jury.

Pelletier's Statement.

Mr. Pelletier said:

United States District Attorney Asa P. French asked me for a copy of the transcript of the evidence before the Grand Jury, and a copy was made for him. Later, Attorney Coughlin asked for a copy, saying that it was no more than fair that his client, the defendant Keliher, should have a copy if the government was to have one. Mr. French got in touch with me on that and I told him that I had no objection to Attorney Coukey having a copy. Mr. French furnished a copy for Mr. Coukey.

Replying to criticisms for allowing Keliher to be interviewed by newspaper reporters, United States Marshal Murchie gave out the following statement:

By virtue of the statements in some of the newspapers that Keliher is still under the control of federal authorities it is proper to deny such statements, and to state that no prisoner, directly or indirect, from any federal source has been given to interview Keliher.

When a federal prisoner is sentenced by a United States court to a term of imprisonment in the Massachusetts State Prison, he is surrendered directly into the custody and control of that institution as a matter of law. The federal authorities have no longer any control of the prisoner, who becomes immediately subject to the rules and regulations of the Massachusetts authorities.

Obviously Massachusetts prisons are not in any manner under control of the United States, and even though a federal official might differ with the keeping of a Massachusetts prison as to the management and liberties of

WILSON TO NAME CABINET ON EVE OF INAUGURAL

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 5.—President-elect Wilson said this afternoon that he would not announce his Cabinet appointments until the eve of his inauguration.

The President-elect promised however, not to follow the precedent of Grover Cleveland, who waited until after his inauguration before announcing his appointees.

"There is no reason why I should be in any great hurry," said Mr. Wilson. "There appears to be no rule about announcing the name of the Cabinet before the inauguration, but I shall not follow the precedent of President Cleveland by so doing.

"I don't mind the numerous petitions which are coming in in behalf of candidates."

With regard to a Chicago despatch that some one there had been authorized to speak for th President-elect on the Illinois Senatorial situation, the President-elect said: "All that I have to say regarding the Senatorial situation in Illinois is that in view of the vote, I feel that the State is entitled to two Democratic Senators."

The Governor devoted practically all of the day to State business.

LAMB'S MARRIED LIFE ANYTHING BUT LAMB-LIKE

According to the story Gilbert C. Lamb told in the Suffolk Divorce court today the color scheme of his married life lacked of harmony. His wife has red hair and blue eyes and she threw an ink-stand of black ink at him, just because he declined her on staying out till 2 a. m.

Life was anything but lamb-like, as Lamb related it. He said he was afraid of Mrs. Lamb and that someone told him a woman with red hair and blue orbs always rules her husbands.

Lamb seeks divorce on the ground of cruelty. He also makes a serious charge against Mrs. Lamb. She has filed a libel, alleging desertion. Her story has yet to be heard.

The brief is confined chiefly to arguments on the legal points involved.

Genuine Cold Wave Here at Last; Going to Stay a While, Too

The first real cold wave of the Winter is here and here to stay for a time. It struck Boston with a snap that sent the ice cracking and booming across the ponds. It froze the snow on the streets, making some of them almost sheets of glare ice. Fair and cold or colder weather is predicted through tomorrow.

Incidentally it made it hard on the horses. Scores fell down every hour on the hills. Traffic was blocked in congested parts of the city many times during the day. So bad was the going for the horses that it led President Rowley of the M. S. P. C. A. to issue the following advice for drivers:

When a horse falls on the slippery pavement he loses his courage and his head. It is the same as if one of us is trying to make our way on the glaring ice, straining every muscle in the utmost point. After falling down we don't care to move again. Horses feel the same way.

I want to impress this on the people of Boston. When they see a horse fall and see that the driver is discouraged, and the horse helpless, they should telephone at once at 111 2440 and notify the M. S. P. C. A.

School Girl Gets a Divorce Decree During Her Recess

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—A school girl of seventeen visited the Supreme Court to get a divorce and then tripped back to her studies.

In 1911, while Miss Lorena Neal Perry was a student in a private school she met Joseph L. Hegeman, a young automobile salesman.

Without letting the members of her family, who live in Memphis, know anything about her intentions, Miss Perry rode to the City Hall and persuaded the license clerk to issue a license to her and Hegeman. Hegeman and his bride went to Tennessee, and she visited her parents while Hegeman registered at a hotel. Later they returned to New York, still keeping the marriage a secret.

On Washington's Birthday last year, Mrs. Hegeman discovered her husband was out riding with another girl. She called on an attorney and he did the rest.

Turtle Has Feeling, 'Mock' or Otherwise, Declares This Jury

A turtle may be animal, reptile or "mock" turtle, so far as New York juries know.

"Brer Turtle" is causing the law in Manhattan as much trouble as he has in Massachusetts, where a learned witness gravely announced once that a turtle is a "bird."

Dispatches today from New York say that a jury there has disagreed whether or not it is cruel to fasten the cheliomans together by piercing their slippers. The defendant, charged with cruelty, is Captain Cleveland S. Downs of the Ward Line steamship Saratoga.

The jurors told the court they thought a more humane method might be used, but they did not find Captain Downs guilty.

Nor would the jurymen rule whether a turtle is animal or reptile. It was their consensus of opinion, however, that a turtle has a sense of feeling.

Despondent Man at Randolph Ends Life in Icy Well

HOST STILL THRONGS MOTOR BOAT SHOW AT MECHANICS HALL

The Motor boat show at the Mechanics building began another day with a large attendance. A host of enthusiasts viewed the many handsome boat exhibits. This year the display especially emphasizes the boat of moderate cost. Of these a wonderful show is made. Every size up to the thirty-six foot, accommodating from two to twenty-five passengers is shown, and at prices from under a hundred dollars well up into the thousands. The show is held early that those who want a boat when the season opens may have time to get their choice built to order. Practically every known device is also on exhibition as well as all the standard engines. This evening at 8 o'clock, Captain Thomas Fleming Day will repeat the free illustrated lecture of his trip across the Atlantic in the thirty-five foot power boat, "The Detroit." This recital details the hardships that Captain Day and his hardy crew of three underwent on that occasion.

VETTERLIN ON TRIAL FOR SLAYING MAN IN I. W. W. BARGE FIGHT

SALEM, Feb. 5.—Charles Vetterlin of Lawrence was placed on trial in the Essex Superior Court today for manslaughter in causing the death of John Smulsky of Lawrence on October 19 in a quarrel over an I. W. W. badge.

The government maintains that Smulsky and another man were in a saloon and the other man entered in argument with a third workman because the latter did not have his I. W. W. badge on. Vetterlin took the part of the third man. The government charges that Vetterlin knocked Smulsky down. His skull was fractured.

CHINATOWN FEASTS AT ITS SECOND NEW YEAR'S CELEBRATION

Chinamen of the new republic celebrated the old Chinese New Year's Day down in Harrison avenue. Although the nation has adopted the universal calendar and legally recognizes January 1 as the beginning of the year, some of the Chinese here insist on keeping the ancient holiday in addition to the new one, which they observed for the first time this year.

The celebration will continue all week. The big day will be tomorrow. In On Leong Tong Hall, in Harrison avenue, near Essex street, there will be banqueting, music and speechmaking from morning until midnight. Yee Wah, Go Soon, Soo Wing, Moy Dow, Moy Loy and other leading men of the colony will address the visitors with the purpose of interesting them in an effort to encourage increased trade relations between the new China and Boston.

King George Views Dreadnought Given by New Zealanders

PORTSMOUTH, England, Feb. 5.—The mighty dreadnought New Zealand, presented to the imperial navy by the Colony of New Zealand was inspected here today by King George, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and a number of high officers of the navy.

King George, whose interest in the navy is greater than in any other branch of the government, was delighted. He remarked that it recalled the days when he was a naval officer, to tread the quarter-deck of the great, new warship. He was shown through every quarter of the ship.

The New Zealand is the biggest warship ever launched at Portsmouth. She was christened in July, 1911, by Lady Ward, wife of Sir Joseph Ward, Premier of New Zealand. The ship carries eight twelve-inch guns, is officered by New Zealanders and carries 900 men.

MARBLE FAILS TO GET DIVORCE FOR CAUSE OF CRUELTY

Irving H. Marble was refused a divorce from Nina B. Marble by Judge Irwin in Suffolk Divorce Court today. He brought suit on the allegation of cruelty.

Today Mrs. Marble took the stand, denied his charges and said that he lied about his age in fact, gave the assignment rise for which she later had to pay $150 and was idle most of the time while she supported him by dressmaking.

In regard to his charge of her shaking him, a constable testified that he started to serve a paper on Marble once, Marble ran, the constable shouted to Mrs. Marble and the latter caught her husband and held him until the constable could serve the papers.

23 DAYS MORE IN CONTEST FOR $40,000 PRIZES

By the CONTEST EDITOR.

Twenty-three—lucky or not—is the number of days left in the AMERICAN'S great $40,000 prize contest.

The tremendous competition comes to a close on Friday, February 28, just twenty-three days away.

This remaining time will be lucky for the workers, unlucky for the laggards. It will be a Jonah time for those who are idling away the precious subscription-getting days.

It will be a period of great good fortune for those who earnestly labor gathering Sunday AMERICAN subscriptions.

One thing is certain, the rewards will go to the workers, not the drones.

Some candidates who rank high now are congratulating themselves that they have a fine prize all "nailed down," as the expression goes.

But just suppose some other hustling candidate comes along with his little hammer—his subscription hammer—and pulls out the nails.

To put it more plainly, suppose some other candidate, by hustling subscription work at the finish, beats the apparent winner by a few thousand votes, or even a few hundred votes.

This race is not over until the polls close at 10 p. m. February 28. The answer is work, work, WORK.

In the meantime, watch for the new vote list which will be printed in next Sunday's AMERICAN. This will be the final vote standing to appear until after the contest closes and the winners are announced.

Our receipts for the ten weeks season just ended have been over $510,000. We gave fifty-two sixteen performances and played 32 one different works. Chicago has enormous floating population, people in the surrounding cities always for whom grand opera was a word have been able to hear best that can be produced.

COAL MINING TO CONTINUE IN RHODE ISLAND

Mining Rhode Island coal will continue and another effort will be made to get back the millions invested in the effort to provide New England with a cheap home fuel. This decision was taken at Portland, when the stockholders of the Portsmouth Coal Mining Company held their annual meeting.

This company is a successor to the Rhode Island Coal Company which was organized some years ago by Henry M. Whitney and associates to develop a property at Portsmouth, R. I., which has been known since 1709 and more or less exploited as a very valuable bed of fuel for about seventy-five years.

The Rhode Island company, in which Governor Pothier and some other prominent men were interested, went into the hands of a receiver about a year ago.

The Portsmouth Coal Mining Company was organized to take over the mine. It had two experts report on the property. One said it was worth working and the other was dubious about the profit to be obtained out of a continuance of operations.

The majority of the board of directors thought the "pessimistic" expert had stood up the situation right and in a letter to stockholders, of whom there are said to be about 700, and who mostly reside in or around Boston, advised discontinuance and liquidation.

Director Joseph Weeks, who is supposed to represent Foss interests, reported in favor of continuing work and appealed to stockholders to back up the "boy" expert, Mr. Whitney wanted to stick to the job, too.

The stockholders at the annual meeting voted, 298,000 shares to 15,000, to keep on mining and not to wind up the corporation's affairs.

As this was contrary to the views of the majority of directors, a new board was elected. The new board and the old are as follows:

| Present Board | Former Board |
|---|---|
| Joseph Weeks | Robert M. Burnett |
| George F. Baldwin | |
| Thomas S. Dwyer | Joseph Weeks, president |
| William G. Souther, Jr. | Vice-president |
| Stephen H. Purdue | Herbert H. Hayes |
| John H. Taylor | William H. Joyce |
| Frederick Hoyt | William J. Corbett |
| | Charles A. Davis |
| | Elmer M. Whitney |

With the exceptions of Mr. Weeks and Henry M. Whitney, the directors who failed re-election were in favor of winding up the affairs of the company.

'DONT SPANK PUPILS,' MISS CURTIS' ADVICE

Only Parents Should Be Permitted to Inflict Punishment, Says Committee Member.

Is the Boston boy to come into his own again? Is that sacred privilege of the boys of fifty years ago—the privilege of being spanked—to be restored in the schools of this city? It is a question for the school board.

With the tendency of some school experts to bring the educational system back to the "A-B Abs" of yesteryear, there may be a parallel movement for the restoration of the spanking machine. The boys who were trained in that way are scattered all over the Union. The Presidents of the United States came from twenty different States, but every one of them also came under the rod of the schoolmaster.

Miss Curtis' Views.

Miss Frances G. Curtis, who has just taken office as a member of the Boston school board, thinks differently and says so. She believes that corporal punishment should be left entirely with the parents of the child. In an interview at her home, No. 28 Mount Vernon street, she said:

There are just as many parents as there are children who ought to get a spanking once in a while. But I do not believe anyone except the parents ought to be allowed to inflict corporal punishment on children. The decision should be made by the parents themselves, and even then the question is open to serious doubt.

The only sort of corporal punishment applied to children I ever heard of is that with a ruler on the finger tips, except in the case of my father. He said that his teacher, a Mr. Gardner, at the Latin School, used to lick him, and that he didn't think he deserved the punishments half the time.

On the other hand, I have heard people say that the trouble with their lives was that they were not punished enough in childhood, and that they would have turned out better men and women if they had been.

Argument Must Be Strong.

The school board would never take up such a question unless it were recommended by the superintendent. But before I would vote in favor of corporal punishment to children not once even, there would have to be a very good argument.

Of course, I have never been married, but I have 5,000 children under me now, and know something about children. It is an old question and it is best to delegate the question of corporal punishment to the parents.

Miss Frances G. Curtis.

Society Women Wear Tights at Big Bal Masque

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The coming of Lent at midnight only caused the bands of the clock to be stopped at the last minute. The dancing was scheduled to continue until noon today.

Just a few of the society women thought to wear dresses. Most of them were in bloomers and not a few more tights—real fleshings with robin-hood capes dropping to some distance above the knee. Some women were pantaloons, reaching close to the ankle, but the women wearing the tights sneezed at the "old-fashioned ones" and remarked: "She knows why she does not dare wear tights."

Evidently the guests had been tipped off in advance to be "just as risque" as they liked, as they came prepared for a mid-Summer night's entertainment.

THOMAS HIGGINS OF QUINCY COMMITS SUICIDE WITH RAZOR

Thomas Higgins of Smith street, Quincy, committed suicide by severing the arteries of his wrists with a razor and slashing his throat. Shortly before midnight his children summoned Rev. Patrick J. Scannell to administer the last rites of the church, but he arrived after the man had died. Medical Examiner Fred S. Jones pronounced it a case of suicide.

Higgins was out of work. He had been an election officer in Ward 8, and had formerly worked in the quarries. After his four grown children had retired last night he went to the basement and ended his life. Higgins' wife died twelve years ago.

$6,000,000 IS READY FOR NEW G. T. EXTENSION

Friends of the Grand Trunk are today wondering where President E. J. Chamberlin obtained the $6,000,000 which is expected to remove all the obstacles to the extension of the road through New England and to Boston.

President Chamberlin is believed either to have the money actually in hand or to have absolute guarantee it will be available in a short time.

The latest move in the Grand Trunk situation in New England indicates a fight between the Canadian road, with its own line on its side and local electric road transportation interests.

The Boston & Providence Interurban Electric Railroad Company has asked the Rhode Island Assembly to grant a charter by which it can take over the proposed route of the Southern New England Railway in that State to tidewater in Providence.

The electric line proposes to conduct a freight and passenger service between Boston and Providence and to run a steamboat line between the latter city and New York. This would make it a competitor of the New Haven on land, and of the Sound steamship lines, which the Mellen road must give up under the Panama Canal act. The electric road has asked in Massachusetts for a renewal of a charter it obtained in this State some time ago.

Incorporators of Line.

The incorporators of the electric company are Kidder, Peabody & Co., Stone & Webster and James F. Shaw of Boston. They want the charter right to connect physically with the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Southern New England railways. The interests behind the new line are big and powerful. It looks as if there is going to be a great battle in the Rhode Island Legislature.

Grand Trunk and allied interests made a counter move when they sent a telegram to a Providence newspaper implying they were going to resume work on the Southern New England. As soon as Grand Trunk interests heard of what Boston bankers were about, President E. J. Chamberlin sent this telegram:

The Chamberlin Telegram.

We have made every effort possible for the last two months to finance Southern New England, and indications now are that within the next few days we shall be successful. Furthermore we have offered the Interurban Electric Railway facilities over our right of way, from the point of their connection, both to the Union Station and to the docks.

BOSTON VETERAN ASKS DOLLAR GIFTS FOR GEN. SICKLES

"Last every veteran of the Grand Army of the Republic rally to the aid of General Sickles," is the plea of Leonard W. Bradley of No. 68 West Concord street. He says:

I feel that every veteran ought to give a dollar. The debt ought to be wiped out in a night.

Personally, I believe that the general, who is ninety-two years old, is too old to be responsible for his actions. When I read Mrs. Longstreet's generous, splendid appeal, I sat down and wrote to Sheriff Hartigan sending him my dollar and the two verses from the Bible: "Reprove, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, less thou also be tempted." "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ."

CARPENTER SAYS WIFE HIT HIM

How his wife struck him in the eye as he was carrying an empty trunk in one hand and a lamp in the other down a flight of stairs at his home in Everett was told today in Judge Hill in the East Cambridge Court by Frank M. Carpenter denied all his wife's allegations.

Thirty disputed ballots were put aside for further consideration.

SHOE PRINTS OF NEGRO NEW CLEW IN BEACH CASE

AIKEN, S. C., Feb. 5.—A telling blow was struck at the defense at the very opening of the second day of the trial of Frederick C. O. Beach, the millionaire New York society and clubman who is charged with slashing his wife in the throat with a penknife in an effort to take her life. Sheriff H. H. Howard, the first witness called today, swore that footprints made by heavy hobnailed shoes and leading away from the spot where Mrs. Beach had been attacked had been noted the day before Mrs. Beach was slashed. It was part of the plan of the defence to claim that those footprints had been made by a negro who had attacked Mrs. Beach. Said Howard: Mr. Beach told me that he believed the tracks had been made by the negro who had attacked his wife. He showed me where the tracks led across a flower bed in the yard surrounding his home and told me that his wife had told the man who cut her had crossed the flower bed.

However, I had seen the same tracks the day before. S. E. Holley, a rural policeman, said that he made the tracks himself. Edward Beach of New York was present when Holley made the statement.

Wilson Uses a Great Big D-- to Gotham Reporter

The New York Times prints conspicuously the story that one of its representatives goaded the President-elect into this emphatic expression:

I am doing what I believe to be best for the country and for myself. If the newspapers expect me to do anything else, I'll be damned if I will.

The Times reporter was terribly shocked. When Roosevelt was in the White House his strongest expletives were:

By Jimminy!
By Golly!
By Jupiter!
By Gracious!

It looks as though Mr. Wilson was not afraid to say what he means.

MYSTERY OVER SUICIDE LEAP FROM FIFTH STORY

The identity of a man who, determined to die, and regardless of the danger in which his act placed pedestrians below, leaped off the roof of the five-story building at No. 854 Washington street, is a mystery the police are trying to solve today. The body is at the City Hospital morgue.

The man was five feet ten inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds, bald and with a gray mustache.

AUNT DELIA EXPOSES THAT APPLE PIE FAKE

Before leaving Millbury today to visit "Nephew Will" at the White House, Miss Delia Taft, aunt of the President, exposed the famous "apple pie fake."

It was "Nephew Horace" Taft, head of the Taft School at Watertown, Ct., who was guilty of starting the story of Miss Torrey's famous apple pies and how she made them especially for the President, and how she gave out her matchless recipe for them. Miss Torrey said:

I do not like that mentioned, as there is absolutely no truth in the matter and it annoys me to have anything said in regard to it.

The story, I have lately found out, started with Horace Taft and he has had an article put in the paper at Waterbury (Ct.) explaining the yarn. It was only lately that he confessed to being the one that started it. He spoke to a reporter and the next day a flaming article was printed about it that was far from the truth. I do not claim to make any better pies than anyone else, and the story is one that I dislike.

KELIHER THROWS MORE LIGHT ON FARO GANG SWINDLE

"BIG BILL" ALSO MAKES CLEAR HOW HE WAS "EASY" IN $5,000 BRIBERY PLOT.

federal prisoners. It would not be a matter of right in the federal officials to criticise and control the way a State institution should be conducted.

The first step in the prosecutions—both in Boston and New York—is expected to be taken within a short time. Following the questioning of Keliher at the State prison by F. J. Grosdi, assistant district attorney of New York city, has received names and details from "Big Bill" in connection with the charges that certain police lieutenant received "protection money" from Welsh, more local developments were promised.

Attorney Grosdi today makes his report to District Attorney Whitman in New York, who may lay Keliher's story at once before the special Grand Jury investigating police corruption in that city. In further the efforts of Receiver Bates of the looted Cambridge bank to get conclusive evidence against the Boston men named by Keliher continued.

Keliher's Tin Box.

As Lieutenant Charles Becker, the New York police grafter, had "My friend Finnegan" for an explanation of his funds, so "Big Bill" Keliher had his family friend, the "tin box."

From new revelations made public today the Keliher tin box is likely to part with history, side by side with Becker's "My friend Finnegan," as an excuse.

When Becker was asked how he paid for the house he sold gilder: "My friend Finnegan left $12,000 in the tin box."

The newspapers immediately picked up the statement and "My friend Finnegan" became a synonym for any excuse for ill gotten funds.

There has been mystery about this tin box. Keliher was not its custodian. Mrs. Keliher was. It contained money and jewelry, the big bill of which were willed to Mrs. Keliher by "Big Bill's" brother Thomas.

It was the same brother Thomas who sold the family estate of 347 acres in Ireland when "Big Bill" was a young man.

"Big Bill" saw the tin box from time to time.

"That I never had my hands on it at any time," he testified.

He never saw the contents. Mrs. Keliher guarded it.

Handy When Needed.

He saw the box first in their Roxbury home, then in Winthrop, in their rooms at the Hotel Belmont, New York city, and later at Winthrop.

Most of all, when bail money was needed for "Big Bill," his wife flew to the wonderful tin box and found $12,000 in it for him.

It was the family guardian against distress, the tin box was. "Big Bill" was told by his wife once that, if he got killed in an accident, she would be well protected.

This meant the tin box.

It was not a big box, for Mrs. Keliher carried it in a large handbag when she accompanied her husband to New York once.

The tin box was never left alone. Where the Kelihers went, there went the tin box also.

This box, Keliher goes on to tell, was at one time at the Hotel Belmont and later at 5 Myrtle avenue, Winthrop, where Keliher formerly lived.

"I never asked my wife the value of the contents," says Keliher. "My brother told me before he died that he was leaving the box to my wife. He said he didn't want to will it to me, as he knew I would squander it. That was how my wife got it.

"I only knew of one time that I got killed in a railroad accident she was well protected. She referred to the tin box and its contents."

The full testimony of Keliher's telling about the "tin box" mystery follows:

Keliher's Sworn Story.

Q—You say you gave your brother Thomas two days before he started for Ireland, which was just before his death, that last trip. Did he tell you at that time he had made a will? A—He did not. He said he was in. He said, "If anything happens you can go in and see ——."

Q—He didn't tell you he made a will? A.—No.

Q—He told you he had left some property in the hands of Mr. ——? A.—He told me he had left matters all arranged with ——.

Q—Did he tell you he had left any property in the hands of Mr. ——? A.—Did he tell me?

Q—Yes. A.—He said he had arranged and left things so that they would be settled.

Q—Did he say whether he had left any property of any sort in the hands of ——? A.—I can't recollect whether he did.

Q.—He told you something—he had given something or other to Mrs. Keliher, didn't he? A.—Yes.

Q.—What? A.—He didn't state what. He said he had sold some stock, and if anything should happen not to be worried, that he had left his interest in the house invested. He said: "I would leave it to you, but there is not a question in my mind but what you would squander it."

How Keliher Was 'Stung' for $5,000, as He Tells It Himself

Thousands of dollars some of my good "friends" got from me and the way the first of that went was the hardest of all.

There was an old friend of mine, to call him friend. He is a Boston man, a former member of the State Legislature. He came to me when I was facing prosecution and said: "Bill, for $5,000 I can 'fix' your case."

Well, he named men and things so pat it naturally sounded good to me. I know it's all right to say now that I was a sucker myself. But, believe me, I've known lots of big men who have fallen for rougher yarns than the one I listened to.

Well, I believed it—and a lot more besides. I gave up the $5,000 and worse. And what's the answer? The answer is that I was "stung." I am sitting here, making shirts in a State prison, while some of my "good friends" are on the outside, looking in at me on the inside, looking out. I hope they—well, never mind. I hope, that's all.—From "Big Bill" Keliher's confession.

Q.—Did you ever get any telegram from him telling you he would be there on the 25th? A.—Yes, Mr. —— read that telegram to me over the phone and asked me kindly not to have anybody from out of town sending telegrams to him. ### Asked of Jail Visit.

Q.—Do you know a man by the name of ——, who was a coachman, or something of that sort? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long? A.—A couple of years.

Q.—How long do you say it is? A.—I knew him two years before I was arrested. I mean ——.

Q.—Now, on one occasion didn't you induce that man to go to New York to play faro? A.—I did not.

Q.—Didn't he go with you to New York? A.—He did not.

Q.—To play faro? A.—He did not.

Q.—Or any amount whatever, on account of any such claim? A.—I did not.

Q.—You said yesterday, I think, that —— came down to see you at the jail Saturday morning? A.—Yes.

Q.—The day after your arrest? A.—Yes.

Q.—And that at that time he said nothing about having received any money from Mrs. Keliher? In fact that he had not received any at that time. Is that so? A.—I testified to that?

Q.—Didn't you say so? A.—I don't think so.

Q.—Well, you said something in regard to getting ——? A.—Mrs. ——.

Q.—Who was a very wealthy woman to go bail for you? A.—I don't know.

Talk at the Jail.

Q.—Did —— say anything at that time about $20,000 got from Mrs. Keliher? A.—He said he received some stuff from Mrs. Keliher but he didn't state the amount.

Q.—Didn't state the amount? A.—No.

Q.—Sure about that? A.—Positive.

Q.—What did he say about it? A.—He stated after that conversation ——.

Q.—No, I am talking about the conversation that you had at the jail Saturday morning, the day after your arrest. A.—He came to the door and said: "Bill, I am working hard and going to get you out on bail today."

Q.—What did he say about what he received from Mrs. Keliher? A.—He said he received some articles. He didn't say whether it was money or not.

Q.—Didn't he say something about having given her a receipt? A.—He didn't. Not on that first conversation. He called every day until I got out on bail and I was there every day.

Q.—And saw you every day there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, referring to an interview you had with Mr. French on December 15th last? A.—Twentieth, I think.

Q.—Fifteenth, 1911. Did you say to him, referring to —— and referring to the conversation I have just been asking you about: "He came down Saturday morning, and he said, 'Mrs. Keliher brought us $23,000.' He said, 'I didn't give her any receipt.' He said, 'I am going to make arrangements with the bank for the money.' Do you remember saying that? A.—I do.

Q.—Is that true? A.—It is.

NEW VERSION OF HOW KELIHER WAS FLEECED OF CASH

There is given today, for the first time, a new version of how "Big Bill" was first "stung," as he says, by a man whom he held as an old and valued friend.

"He said he could do it and I fell for it good," says Keliher.

As a brace faro gambler and a "framer" of fake faro games "Big Bill" himself "trimmed" hundreds of men out of thousands of dollars.

Many of these victims esteemed Keliher as their friend until they were undeceived.

Keliher was finally duped himself, he says. He declares that he believed the story told him of "fixing" his case.

One of the interest among Keliher's many and varied memories, now in exile pining in prison his crime against society, is the recollection of how he "fell for it," to use his own terse language.

"I guess I could fall for that myself," asked Keliher unapply of the AMERICAN reporter he whom he was telling his story. "I did, I believed every word that was told me."

The man Keliher named is a former member of the Massachusetts Legislature, a Boston politician who is most familiar to Boston and Massachusetts.

Names Two U. S. Employes.

Keliher's story brings in the name of two federal office holders at Boston and even involves national politics in so far as Keliher says that the re-election of United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was often in one of the arguments used to him.

Keliher also describes the fleecing of a Randolph, who manufacturer out of $25,000 and of a Winchester real estate dealer out of 30,000.

He tells how the Welch-Keliher gang operated in Boston, New York, Buffalo, Philadelphia and ago Atlantic City.

Keenly illustrative of the inveriancy of the faro gang is the statement that the colored porter was paid $100 a week.

This is naturally followed by the assertion that the gang had no use for the $2,000 or $5,000 that "Big Bill" regrets his wasted hours.

By a mental process not quite clear to the average mind, he thinks he would now make a very successful clergyman and preacher.

Here is "Big Bill's" story of that "trimming" by a friend, which he says, rankles in his breast now:

How Big Bill Was "Trimmed."

"Thousands of dollars some of my good "friends" got from me and the way the first of that went was the hardest of all.

"There was an old friend of mine, to call him friend. He is a Boston man, a former member of the State Legislature. He came to me when I was facing prosecution and said: 'Bill, for $5,000 I can "fix" your case.'

"How?' I asked him.

"'Never mind. I will go to ——, who will go to ——.'

"Well, he named are federal officeholders in Boston now.

"It didn't sound reasonable to me that such men could be 'fixed,' and I told him so. I said: 'See here, how can you do that, and what would $5,000 be for him, if he could be got in?'

"He replied to me: 'You don't understand. It isn't for the money alone. These two men are nations to have Henry Cabot Lodge returned to the United States Senate. If it comes down to cases, I can get him to the Lodge men and pass my vote for Lodge.' The $5,000 is only part of the drag I shall have on them."

Don't Say You Can't Eat

You'll Never Have Stomach Trouble After You Read This, and Act on It. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Are the Open Secret.

Thousands of people who hadn't really enjoyed a meal for years have given their stomach a new lease of life through the wonder-workers, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They promptly put an end to dizziness, heartburn, dizziness, sick headache, indigestion, fuming sensation, bad, fermentation and the other ills attendant upon a disordered stomach.

The Stomach Sends a Message to the Brain the Instant There Is Trouble.

In this day and age of known facts, there is absolutely no excuse for anyone to suffer with stomach trouble, indigestion, sour risings, catarrh of the stomach, gas formations, etc.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are composed of known and approved digestants that help out the gastric juices of the stomach. They are Nature's digestives, the same kind the stomach uses when it is in good health.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do not merely aid digestion—they actually digest the food themselves. All the hard work is thus taken off the stomach and it gets a chance to rest and recuperate. The undigested food which usually produces nauseating gases in the stomach becomes thoroughly digested, and as a result provides new brain and bigger and more cells to replace natural waste always going on.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act quickly, safely and naturally, just like Nature herself. They are a familiar and standard part of the stock of every properly equipped drug store and are sold at 50c a box.

Those who once try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are never at a loss to know how to overcome any form of indigestion or stomach trouble.

SUBWAY GRAB HALTED BY WRIT IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—John J. Hopper, acting on behalf of the people of New York city, has obtained an injunction delaying action on the Gaynor-Whitney subway grab. The injunction was served on the Public Service Commission just as it was about to rush the grab through.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit contracts were on the table ready for action. The printers were putting the final finishing touches on the Interborough Company's share of the deal when a long-haired young man tossed the injunction on the table in front of Commissioner Wilcox.

BILL TO RECALL COURT DECISIONS URGED BY HILL

The recall of judicial decisions was urged upon the Legislative Committee on Constitutional Amendments at the State House today by former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill.

Former Speaker Joseph Walker of Brookline, the Republican gubernatorial candidate last Fall, who was since joined the Progressive party, was present but, when called upon to address the committee, said that he had merely come to listen.

The hearing was on a bill to amend the State Constitution so that a decision by the Supreme Court of the State that an act passed by the Legislature is unconstitutional, might be recalled by the voters.

In opening, Mr. Hill declared that the bill was not an attack upon the courts of the State. He said that he would not hesitate to increase the powers of the State judiciary and that he believed an elective judiciary would be desirable.

"The bill simply means," he said, "the giving of the ultimate say in such matters as the measure would apply to, to the people, who, according to the letter of the Preamble of our Constitution, are the ultimate rulers."

"Our courts in this State," he continued, "have been given by the people the extraordinary power that they have under the Constitution. There is no other country in which the courts have the power to set aside laws made by the legislative branch of the government. In other countries the courts bow to the authority of the lawmakers.

"It is not proposed to abolish the power of these courts, but the plan is to have laws so into effect even after they have been declared unconstitutional if the people so decide. This does not affect the judiciary in any way. The greatest judges have held that no laws should be set aside in the case of gross abuse. In many States decisions have been made which stand as a block on progress."

RENEW FIGHT IN BOSTON IN SHOE MACHINERY CASE

The taking of evidence in the United States government's civil suit under the Sherman act for dissolution of the United Shoe Machinery Company is expected to begin before General Charles R. Darling in Boston within a month. The government case was ready several months ago, but the Department of Justice deferred proceedings because the company won its contention for private hearings.

Members of the House of Representatives at Washington will, it is expected, concur with the Senate's action in doubling the civil penalties for public hearings in proceedings under the Sherman act.

In this manner the Supreme Court air missed the government's criminal action against the defendant company's officers, except one indictment.

WORCESTER, Feb. 5.—The non appearance of several members at the forty-third anniversary celebration of Battery B, First Battalion Field Artillery, M. V. M., at which the newly elected commander, Major Jesse H. Shedenhelm of Boston spoke, revealed a dissension caused by the Boston man's election.

Those who stayed away from the banquet it was said, were dissatisfied because of the non-election of Lieutenant Nicholas L. Smith, blamed upon Captain Edward B. Wheeler. Captain Wheeler said:

"Smith entered the race at the last minute. I had promised to vote for Sheldenhelm and to keep my word."

HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Removes the scum from the tongue, sweetens a sour gassy, bilious stomach; cleanses your liver and 30 feet of bowels without gripe or nausea.

If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you belch undigested food and feel sick and miserable, it means that your liver is clogged with sour bile and your thirty feet of bowels are packed with fecal waste matter that properly carried off, constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the thirty feet of bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids, and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should sink only nourishment to sustain the body.

Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after effects—as they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do this liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel washday. That is all wrong. If you will take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, you will never realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the poisonous matter, sour bile and clogged-up waste will be moved on and out of your system, thoroughly but gently—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. Taking Syrup of Figs is a real pleasure. Don't think you are drugging yourself; it is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, and constant use can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company, on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other Fig Syrup offered as good should be refused with contempt. Don't imposed upon.

BROUGHT UP BIG FAMILY ON ONLY $13.50 A WEEK

Mayor Fitzgerald's advice to young men to marry as soon as they can earn $15 a week, which has stirred lively comment in home circles, is approved by the majority of laborers in the city's street cleaning department.

Of course every mother's son approached, whether young or old, felt it would be much nicer to have an income of $18 or $20 weekly. However, they were unanimous in the opinion that a man could marry and rear a family on $15 a week and even on $13 a week.

Read what one venerable city employe had to say:

By A CITY BROOM MAN.

I have been working for years for the city in the street cleaning squad for $2.25 a day, which sets me $13.50 a week, and I have reared a half-dozen children on it. But I couldn't bank a penny. I have had to live up to my $13.50 a week.

It can be done, though, as our Mayor says. I think our young men ought to marry early. The girls can help them with them now is their inflated notions. They have an idea that they must be bankers to support a wife and children. This is all bosh.

Take my case, for example. When I married I was a lad of twenty-one, as stout as a young oak, but with slim prospects. I drove a tipcart for $12 a week and got along. Then years ago I got into the street cleaning squad and since then I have earned about $13.50.

Extra Work a Godsend.

There are times when we are forced to work overtime, which means double pay. That has been a godsend at all times for me. One night this week, for instance, we had to work shoveling snow and slush. It was hard work after having been at it all day.

I'm not as rugged as I used to be, mind. But I pulled through and I got an extra day's pay. My wife and myself haven't been able to save a dollar until within the past few years.

But that is because my children are growing up fast. Four of my six children are working now. They are not only self-supporting but contribute toward the general household expenses. Two of the girls are in department stores and the lads have bright prospects. Do you know, I'm disappointed to think I couldn't send them through college.

Some of the men in the yard think college education a nuisance, but I differ with them. While I didn't have learning, I'd like to have my children get it. For years it was almost a hand-to-mouth existence while they were youngsters, getting sick and wearing out shoes as fast as I could buy them, but it's different now and my wife and I get comfort out of their bright faces. There isn't a black sheep among 'em.

Must Figure Close.

You have to figure pretty close on a $15 a week basis. With my average wage at $13.50 it took mathematical deductions and fractions which my wife seemed to have a natural skill for to make both ends meet.

We didn't want to live in too dirty a neighborhood, for economy there sometimes works the wrong way by tainting your children, which isn't economy at all, but downright stupidity on the part of parents. So, as I said, we paid a little heavier rent that we might have taken advantage of. It averaged from $12 to $14 a month.

It was a happy week when the grocery and provision bills fell under $7, to say nothing of the wear and tear on pantaloons and shoes. Then there was the coal and wood, the kerosene and the gas after the girls got larger and we went into a better tenement.

Work and Keep Sober.

Doctors' bills ate up a lot in the children's young days. Don't smile when I say I got a second-hand piano and gave both girls music lessons. No, we haven't starved or gone begging, although it was an uphill fight at times. Do you know what counts more than money? The determination to work and be sober, family love, and, above all, faith in the Almighty.

I'll go our Mayor one better by saying that young men shouldn't hesitate to marry with $10 a week if they get the right girl. It's the natural life.

ROSS WINANS' 'SUNSHINE GIRL' SEEING WORLD

Miss Dorothy Bateman, the Newport heiress, has started out to enjoy the fortune of $500,000 left her by Ross R. Winans, an aged Baltimore millionaire, as a proof of his affection. She is now on a trip to Panama with her father, Sidney Bateman, and it is stated that when she returns and the roads are suitable the two will make an automobile trip from New York to San Francisco.

Miss Bateman came into her fortune last Spring and for nearly a year was unshaken in her determination, announced at the time, of leading the life of a simple country maiden and not changing a bit. To be consistent she would have to continue taking care of her chickens, selling her eggs to the neighbors and helping her mother with the housework at the Bateman inn.

She was nineteen years old at the time Mr. Winans left her the $500,000 because of the sunshine she brought into his life. The old man had a villa near the Bateman home. Every morning he went there to live and every Summer he enjoyed the companionship of the little girl. He watched her grow from babyhood to girlhood, and just as she was passing into a beautiful womanhood, he died. His "sunshine girl" expected a slight remembrance, but was surprised at being made the principal legatee of the estate.

Collins on Trial for Threatening Life of the British King

LONDON, Feb. 5.—At the Old Bailey today Percy William Collins was placed on trial, charged with sending threatening letters to King George and to Miss Lilah McCarthy, an actress.

The letter to the King was sent on December 16 and read:

"To King George V, from Police Sergeant Stenning and Superintendent Gooding.

"Sir: If you do not send us 400 pounds each we shall shoot you dead. No precaution will help you. No one will believe that we wrote this because we have very good characters and are very well known members of the police force. The magistrate will never believe anything against us if we put it on to some one else. You must send by return."

It was admitted by the prosecution that Collins was in an insane asylum from October, 1907, to March, 1909, but Muir said he would not assume the insanity of the defendant until it should be proved.

ASH WEDNESDAY SERVICES TODAY IN THE CHURCHES

Special services were held in the Catholic churches for the beginning of Lent today, Ash Wednesday. The Lenten season is ushered in this year at the earliest date for ninety-five years. In 1818 Ash Wednesday fell on February 4. It will be eighty-seven years, or 2,000 A. D., before Lent begins again as early as February 5.

Easter will be on a correspondingly early date, March 23.

The advent of the lenten period of prayer and sacrifice was marked by various individual observances in the form of giving up one pleasure or another. The society calendar is practically vacant. Public amusements note the change, especially in Boston.

In the Roman Catholic churches masses were celebrated today, with dousing of the penitential ashes. There will be evening services tonight. At the Holy Cross Cathedral there will be the Way of the Cross this evening. Similar services will be held at the Cathedral every Wednesday evening through Lent.

In the Episcopal churches the lenten daily services begin with Holy Communion at 7 o'clock, morning service at 10 and vesper evening services. Special services will be held at noon and 3 p. m. in St. Paul's Cathedral. Five o'clock evensong will also be held in Episcopal churches of the higher ritual.

Honest Statement of Well Known Citizen

An advertisement of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I saw in the St. Albans Messenger some time ago, induced me to give your remedy a fair trial. I was then suffering from terrible pains in the small of my back. The pain was usually greatest during the morning, and often when I attempted to arise from my bed to go to work, I found I could not do so without the assistance of some member of my family. I am very grateful for the good your great remedy has done for me.

I thought I would have to use much more Swamp-Root than I did, in order to get well, but an absolute cure of my kidney trouble and now without the slightest pain, after using only seven bottles. Was cured about six months ago, and though I do heavy work in the shop where I have been employed for the past forty-four years, have had no reoccurrence of the trouble or pain in the slightest degree.

I am doubly thankful for this, and while now an old man, I again feel the strength of my youth. Wishing to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Many others also use it to as good advantage as I have.

HEARST DISCUSSES MASSACHUSETTS POLITICS, BRYAN FOR CABINET, OTHER QUESTIONS

HEARST DOES NOT OPPOSE BRYAN

Says if Wilson Thinks It Best, He Should Put Him in Cabinet —Praises Foss and Mayor

By ROBERT L. NORTON.

William Randolph Hearst states that President-elect Wilson should name Colonel Bryan as a member of his Cabinet "if he believes that Bryan in the Cabinet will be of advantage to his administration and to the country."

Mr. Hearst's attitude towards Colonel Bryan is but one of the many interesting things discussed anent the national political situation, in an interview with the writer at the Copley-Plaza Hotel yesterday.

Since Colonel Bryan turned the tide at Baltimore and accomplished the nomination of Governor Wilson by the Democratic party as against the Hon. Champ Clark, of Missouri the relations between the "peerless" one and Mr. Hearst have not been amicable.

Mr. Hearst says that all the citizens, irrespective of their political affiliations, should suspend criticism of Mr. Wilson and turn in and lend him a helping hand until it is demonstrated whether or not the new President's policies are successful.

Practices What He Preaches.

As indicating that he intends to practice what he preaches, Mr. Hearst says that it is part of Mr. Wilson's privilege as President to form a Cabinet in accordance with what he thinks would be for the best interests of his administration and for the best interests of the country.

"If Mr. Wilson believes that Bryan in the Cabinet will be of advantage to his administration and to the country, then he should put him there," says Mr. Hearst, "and I think that the Democrats of the country and the citizens generally should give Mr. Wilson every opportunity and every reasonable encouragement in the pursuance of his policies, at least until it is demonstrated whether or not these policies are successful."

Mr. Hearst has been in Boston for several days. During his stay he met the leading Democrats of the State at a luncheon given in his honor by Mayor Fitzgerald.

Praises Governor Foss.

In commenting on the situation in Massachusetts, Mr. Hearst expressed the opinion that Governor Foss would make a very able member of the Cabinet. He differed with the estimate made of the Democracy of Mr. Foss by Colonel Bryan at the Baltimore convention. When the name of Governor Foss was mentioned for the nomination for President, Colonel Bryan said that he had been in the Democratic party for such a short time that he was still "wet around the neck."

Mr. Hearst said that he believed that Governor Foss was well worth considering for the nomination for President four years hence and that he would be glad to see him reelected for a fourth term, if he cared to run again this year.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Who has given to the Post an interesting interview on national, state and public questions.

The interview with Mr. Hearst was as follows:

Q.—What do you think of the Democracy of Massachusetts, having met many of the prominent leaders of the party here?

A.—I had occasion to say at the luncheon given by Mayor Fitzgerald which I attended, what is practically an answer to your question, and that is that I thought the Democracy of Massachusetts represented particularly well the sentiments of the mass of people and had the courage to be Democratic. It was Tilden who said "The Democratic party would always succeed when it had the courage to be Democratic." I think the Democratic party of Massachusetts represents very well the new Democracy, which is in reality the old Democracy of Jefferson, and that it is not vision-ary on the one hand or reactionary on the other hand, but that it seeks to express and succeeds in expressing the needs and wishes of the mass of people.

Bay State in Cabinet.

Q.—Do you think because of the example set the country by the Massachusetts Democracy in the last three years in overturning the State which has always been held to be a stronghold of Republican that this Democracy should be represented in the Wilson Cabinet?

A.—I must say I do think it ought to be represented in the Wilson Cabinet, not only for that reason, but because I think there is need for representation in the Wilson Cabinet of the idea of trade expansion in connection with tariff reduction. It seems to me that if tariff reduction is necessary and advantageous for the country as a whole, and I myself we must admit in some ways at least that there are abuses of the tariff, still we must equally admit that trade expansion is advantageous to the country as a whole. The idea of reciprocity seems to me to accomplish both these benefits. It makes certain reductions in the tariff, but it secures for those reductions certain concessions to our trade on the part of foreign nations, and in this way I believe that the general prosperity brought about by trade expansion can be made to overcome any local depression that may be caused by tariff reduction.

Declares Foss Fitted.

Q.—Is there any particular leader of the Democracy of Massachusetts that you think is adapted for a Cabinet position?

A.—I must say that Governor Foss particularly well represents the idea I have just discussed, and that he is fitted in many other ways for that particular position. I don't know at all that the Governor would be willing to accept a Cabinet position; it is all speculation on my part. I think the position of Governor of Massachusetts is one which, for a man at all, I wouldn't wish to resign for a Cabinet position. It is a great office, an independent office, and an office where there is opportunity for great constructive work, and Governor Foss has shown how much can be accomplished for the benefit of the people of the State in that office while there. While I have no doubt that in the Cabinet his influence would be felt in a way to benefit the whole country, still there is less independence in the Cabinet position, and a man does not always get the full credit for the benefits offered.

Q.—Mr. Bryan, said at Baltimore, speaking of Governor Foss' Democracy, that he was still "wet around the neck." Mr. Foss is that time was a candidate for the nomination for President. Will his present record as a Democrat make him a strong candidate for the party four years from now?

Different Viewpoint.

A.—Mr. Bryan and I look at things very differently. I don't consider party regularity important, and I consider Governor Foss is a good Democrat, and has been a good Democrat for many years, even when he was known as a Republican. I define a Democrat in a general way as a man who is concerned for the interests of the whole people rather than for the special interests of any class in the community, and I think that, according to that definition, Governor Foss has been "dry around the neck" for a long time. He has been that kind of a man who, to my mind, is the right kind of a Democrat, and he found eventually that his proper place was in the Democratic party. The Democratic party speedily recognized that he was a true Democrat and the best kind of a Democrat, and advanced him to a position where he has shown his Democracy as well as his capacity. So I think that Governor Foss is a fit candidate for any honor within the gift of the Democratic party now, and I would be very glad to see him re-elected if he cares to run.

Q.—Your definition of a Democrat would fit a Bull Moose?

A.—While I rather think it might, I rather think it would include some of them, not all of them. Of course, if the Democratic party had always lived up to that definition there would be no occasion for any of these various independent movements. These independent movements are due to dissatisfaction with the course of the old parties and the failures on the part of the old parties to honestly and sincerely represent the people.

Q.—What have you to say, Mr. Hearst, on the talk of the appointment of Mr. Bryan as secretary of State by President Wilson?

President Wilson's Privilege.

A.—I have only to say in regard to that, that Wilson has been elected President, and the part of his privilege as President is to form a Cabinet in accordance with what he thinks would be for the best interests of his administration and for the best interests of the country. I also believes that Bryan in the Cabinet will be of advantage to his administration and to the country, then he should put him there, and I think that the Democrats of the country and the citizens generally should give Mr. Wilson every opportunity and every reasonable encouragement in the pursuance of his policies, at least until it is demonstrated whether or not these policies are successful.

Mr. Wilson's Attitude.

Q.—What do you think of Mr. Wilson's attitude toward business?

A.—I don't know what Mr. Wilson's attitude toward business is. I think there again we will have to wait until Mr. Wilson's policies are demonstrated. I don't pay much attention to what people in politics say. It is what they do. We have had so many instances of encouraging conversation where it is not sufficiently followed by vigorous action, that I prefer not to pass on what is said, but to wait and see what is done. As a matter of fact, I don't see what good talk does at this particular time. I say the time to talk was during the campaign, when the people were particularly anxious to know what Mr. Wilson's opinions were, and the time to act will be after Mr. Wilson is inaugurated. Now is merely all the harm of action. You can disturb business by talk almost as much as you can by actually regulating it, and you cannot benefit the community except by properly regulating business.

Q.—Do you feel, Mr. Hearst, that big business is receiving due attention in Mr. Wilson?

A.—Well, I hope not. Big business, so-called, has not the confidence of the community, and the people feel that big business needs regulation. Of course, big business doesn't itself feel that it does need regulation, although if it does feel that it doesn't want it. Now I can't imagine big business having confidence in Mr. Wilson, unless they knew he wasn't going to regulate it.

Business Very Much on Mend.

Q.—What do you think of the general business condition of the country?

A.—I think the general business condition of the country is very much on the mend, but it has been in a rather serious condition, and it was precipitated into that condition by the inflation and speculation of big business.

Q.—What is the most important thing that the Wilson administration can accomplish?

A.—I don't know that I can assume to answer that. There are a number of things that I think the people are looking to the new administration to accomplish. There are several very important things, and I sincerely hope that the administration will devote itself to accomplishing these things and not dissipate its popularity and its power and its opportunity in endeavoring to do things that are not demanded by the people and that may not be of advantage to the people. Of course, the important things are the elimination of the abuses in the tariff, a plan of tariff reduction based largely on reciprocity. Tariff reduction means the extent that it is put into operation to accomplish the opening of our markets to the products of other nations, and I feel that this should be accompanied by agreements which will open the markets of other nations to a proportionate degree to the products of our country. Another important matter is the trust question. I feel that combination is inevitable, that we will either have open and avowed combination that can be regulated, or secret but still effective combination, which it will be difficult for the people to regulate. I think we should have a national incorporation act, that we should recognize the fact that combination in business helps, that it has many advantages and some abuses, that combination should be regulated so as to preserve the advantages and eliminate the abuses. I think that in public service monopolies the State should go further than regulation and that we should have public ownership; but it is obviously impossible for the government to own all the business that operates in combination or that even has monopoly. It is possible to regulate combination, regulate monopoly, but it is not possible to compel competition.

Investigations Mainly Educational.

Q.—What do you think of the results of the Pujo investigation?

A.—I think the results of all these investigations are mainly educational. They educate the Congressmen to a certain extent, but what is more important, they educate the public. The Congressmen doubtless know already a great deal of the evils they are investigating, but the public is not so familiar with these evils. What is needed is the pressure of public opinion to compel legislative action.

Q.—Do you think much of these investigations we will get any sound system for the regulation of the finances of the country, the money of the country?

A.—Why, I should think that eventually we should develop a sounder system out of our increased knowledge.

Q.—To pass to the local situation again, Mr. Hearst, I would like to have you say something on the New Haven situation in Massachusetts—on the railroad fight which is being made in this State.

Mellen Morgan's Agent.

A.—Well, that really is a phase of the monopoly situation that we have just been discussing, a phase of the public service monopoly. To many people here in New England I think the personality of a president always seems to be the stumbling block. The personality of President Mellen is entirely unfortunate. President Mellen is merely an agent of Mr. Morgan's; he reports to Mr. Morgan, and he gets his instructions from Mr. Morgan. If Mr. Mellen were removed, you may rest assured no one else except a Mellen kind of a man would be put in his place, because that is the kind of a man required for that kind of a system. It is perhaps fortunate that Mr. Mellen is retained, because he expresses to the community in his personality the causes of the system. It is like Tammany Hall in New York. It is always Tammany Hall. You sometimes have one leader and sometimes another, but they all develop the same characteristics, the same objectionable features, because Tammany Hall requires that kind of a leader and wouldn't have any other kind of a leader. It is sometimes disadvantageous to have a change of leaders, because it obscures the issue, leads people to think there will be a different kind of leadership. The whole idea of securing a monopoly is to secure an opportunity to extort unjust rates and fares from the public to pay interest on over-issues of securities.

No Advantage in Unjust Attacks.

Q.—Don't you think there are occasions when a railroad is sometimes unjustly attacked by men for political purposes?

A.—There is no political advantage for a man to take an attitude against a corporation, of this kind. That attitude expresses the wish of the public to arraign in attacking Boston railroads unless he is justified and unless the people feel he is justified in doing so. Harriman monopolies are not peculiar to New England. We had the same disadvantages in California until we had competing systems. When California was locked in the monopoly of the Southern Pacific Railroad it suffered the same oppression and extortion that New England is now suffering. It was Collis P. Huntington who developed the phrase, "Get all that the traffic will bear." The object of having a monopoly is to get all the traffic will bear.

Q.—Do you think anything can be accomplished in this railroad situation in New England by uniform legislation by the New England States? Or is it a matter for the federal government?

A.—It is a matter of interstate commerce very largely and that comes within the power and opportunity of the federal government, but there is the peculiar phase in this question under which the State of Massachusetts is enabled to take over the Boston & Maine railroad, which enables the State to take more or less effective action on its own account.

Calls It Appeal to Ignorance.

Q.—The New Haven Railroad is trying to create the impression here that much of this agitation originates in New York and has for its purpose the side-tracking of business from Boston, to keep Boston off the business map, so that in no way will the business interests of Boston endanger the business interests of New York.

A.—There may possibly be any truth in that. Is is merely an appeal to ignorance more than prejudice. I don't imagine that the people of New England are so ill informed as to make such an appeal possible. As a matter of fact the control of the New York & New Haven lies in New York and the present conduct of the New Haven is supposed to strangle the trade and commerce of New England for the financial benefit of the New York owners of the railroad. That seems to be the situation that New England is trying to correct; and they are trying to correct is by exercising some power and influence over these New England railroads.

Public Ownership Advantage.

Q.—Do you believe in the public ownership of the Boston & Maine Railroad by Massachusetts?

A.—I should think it a distinctly advantageous move at this time. I believe in the general principle of public ownership of public utilities, especially where these utilities are monopolies. We have found that the regulation of public utilities by public service commissions is not sufficiently effective, that the public service commissions are too often controlled and dominated by the interests by the public utilities that they are supposed to regulate, to control. At the time this question of public service commissions and the inability of controlling public utilities through public service commissions was at its height it was generally admitted that if this method of regulating proved ineffective, although it would be nothing left but public ownership. In fact, the owners of the public utilities succeeded in postponing, deferring public ownership by urging these other methods and by asserting that it would be time to take up public ownership when the attempt to control public utilities through public service commissions had failed. Now the responsible supervisors of these public utilities are doing their best to bring about public ownership, because they are doing their best to make the control of public utilities through public service commissions a failure. We must realize the debt of gratitude that the Progressive movement owes to the reactionaries. Radical sentiment has not all been aroused by the arguments of the radicals. It has been more extensively stimulated by the outrages of the reactionary and the revival of the movement for public ownership, and I believe the eventual and inevitable success of the public ownership in the crusade that is now being conducted will be dominantly to the arguments furnished by the public service monopolists themselves.

Boston's Needs.

Q.—What do you think Boston most needs for its development?

A.—I think it most needs the kind of civic stimulus it is now getting. The development of a metropolitan character that is now being urged both by the city government, the State government and by the various civic bodies here is typified by the Johnnie Appleseed, Chamber of Commerce and Real Estate Exchange. I notice a distinctly greater metropolitan character to Boston than it formerly had. There is the very wonderful Opera House. There is the Symphony Museum, which is one of the finest in the world, there is this very hotel where we are talking in to-day, which isn't surpassed in any metropolis anywhere, and there is a general tendency toward metropolitan life and development and metropolitan attractions which I think Boston needed.

Praises Mayor Fitzgerald.

"I consider Mayor Fitzgerald an exceedingly valuable public official for Boston. He is thoroughly imbued with the idea of making Boston the great metropolis of this extensive and important division of the country.

"He understands perfectly the necessity of continuity adding to the attractiveness of a metropolis, of ever increasing the opportunities for legitimate enjoyment and for the incidental distribution of wealth.

"A true metropolis should be not only delightful but distinctive. Boston has a peculiar intellectual charm and historic association, which give it a special and individual attraction.

"Add to these the fullest scope for judicious enjoyment, the greatest variety of elevating entertainment, and you have an ideal city which should attract its hundreds of thousands of visitors, not only from the surrounding section, but from all parts of the world.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that most of our investing money goes outside, goes to the West, to the mining country; the men who have money don't invest it here?

A.—Perhaps that has been so in the past and may be so now to a certain extent, but money generally goes where its opportunities are first, and the development of Boston in the line of which it is now developing will tend to make the opportunities here so that in the future there will be no occasion for the money to be invested to the same extent in outside enterprises. I don't think there is any better, more secure opportunity for investment in the world than the investment in a great and growing metropolis.

Progressive Principles to Stay.

Q.—Has the Progressive party come to stay, in your opinion, as distinct from the Republican party?

A.—Progressive principles have come to stay, but whether they will find their best expressions in the Progressive party it is hard to say. An independent movement is made successful not more by its own action and advocacy but by the mistakes and failures of the old party. The Republican party failed to express the growing progressive sentiment of the country, failed even to realize that it existed. The result was the Progressive party, which may be said to be merely the progressive section of the Republican party. Should the Democratic party equally fail to represent the progressive sentiment of the country there would be a Democratic defection which, if joined to the Progressive party, might put the Progressive party in power; but I don't think the Democratic party is blind to the strength of the progressive movements, that it is deaf to the progressive demand. I think the Democratic party will endeavor to carry out progressive ideas, and, if it does so successfully and satisfactorily, it will become the Progressive party of the country, and I don't see that there will be any occasion for another Progressive party, or either any opportunity for one.

Q.—Is it true that the Standard Oil Company has declared a melon cutting dividend of $40 on the $100, and the price of gasoline has been increased five to seven cents a gallon, throughout the country?

Combinations Will Exist.

A.—That is merely an instance that illustrates a point that I was using a moment ago, that combination exists and will continue to exist. The Standard Oil is a trust which the Supreme Court has lately dissolved, and the futility of such a policy is shown by the fact that the stock of the individual companies has largely increased in value—more than doubled in value since the dissolution. That doesn't mean that dissolving the trust has benefited the individual companies. It simply means that the Supreme Court decision has authorized a scheme under which the combination can continue legally, and that the combination does continue is shown by the fact that the price of the product of the trust is continually advanced and the income of the trust continually increases. Now, if you shut your eyes to these facts and declare that you have compelled competition when you haven't and assert that there is no combination when there obviously is, you are unable to deal with the situation; but, if you recognize that the combination exists and compel it to exist under government regulation and compel the trust to deal fairly with the public, you are able to deal with it.

Believes in Short Terms.

Q.—Do you believe in restricting the term of a President of the United States to one of six years?

A.—I certainly do not. I think that six years is too long for an unsuccessful President, and that four years is not long enough for an able President who is conducting his office to the satisfaction of the people of the country. This question is not a new one. It was thoroughly discussed at the time when the length of the President's term was originally decided. Jefferson, who was at first in favor of one long term, was so convinced by the arguments that he changed his mind and advocated the present policy, which was finally adopted, the idea being that the people should be allowed to express their approval or disapproval of a President's acts at the end of four years; to reject him if he was a bad President and reelect him if he was a good President. Jefferson's arguments in favor of this course, it would stand today as an argument in favor of the principle of the recall. This policy gives the people a certain control over their Chief Executive, but not the Chief Executive an added incentive to serve the public faithfully and effectively. The special interests of the country already have too great an influence in our political life and in our government to deprive the people of this or any opportunity. To exert their influence is to proceed in opposition to the trend of thought today and to limit the opportunity of the public to control public officials and public interests. As Thomas Jefferson wrote to John Taylor in these words: "My opinion originally was that the President of the United States should have been elected for seven years and forever ineligible afterward. I have since become sensible that seven years is too long a term irremovable, and that there should be a peaceable way of withdrawing a man midway who is doing wrong."

CASSIDY REFUTES PLEA OF BRIGGS IN DEFENCE OF RENOVATED BUTTER

Mr. Briggs attempted to champion the cause of renovated butter. In so doing, he made statements calculated to deceive his woman listeners, and therefore I wish to correct him.

Mr. Briggs said, in part:

"Renovated butter is in bad odor with many housewives. But it does not deserve its bad reputation.

"As a matter of fact, much renovated butter is better, fresher and healthier than the ordinary market butter.

"To understand this, it is necessary to know where the renovated butter comes from.

"The farmers in a given community may make their own butter. After the family's needs are supplied, there will still be left over two to five pounds to a family. Then the farmer or the farmer's wife takes the remnant of butter—which is perfectly fresh and good—and sells it to a store in the town.

"That butter is all turned over to a federal bureau. If it were simply mixed up together, it would be streaky, for the different pieces are apt to be of different colors, varying according to the cows each farmer owned, and the quality of the milk.

"Therefore, the butter is put through the renovating process. It comes out a nice even color, free from streaks, and equal or superior to the ordinary market butter."

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Alton E. Briggs of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, who has identified himself as a foe of the two bills now before the Legislature, forcing honesty from retailers of skimmed milk cheese and of butterine, renovated butter and oleomargarine, yesterday addressed the Women's Guild of Newtonville. There were 150 women present. The meeting was held in the New Church, and Mrs. Irving O. Palmer, president of the guild, presided.

Briggs attempted to champion the cause of renovated butter by the Federal government, and the Federal and State governments require that the renovated butter be distinctly labeled, to prevent any deceit of the customer.

Third—The Massachusetts act reads as follows:

Revised Laws 56, Section 48—Whoever himself or by his agent . . . sells, exposes for sale, or has in his custody or possession with intent to sell, any article or compound which is produced by taking original packing stock or other butter, or both, MELTING THE SAME, so that the butter fat may be drawn off, mixing the said butter fat with skimmed milk, or milk, or cream, or other milk product, and rechurning the said mixture, or by any similar process, and is commonly known as process butter, shall have the words "renovated butter" conspicuously stamped, labelled or marked, . . . upon the top, side or bottom of every tub, firkin, box or package containing said article or compound.

The remainder of the section provides that each package sold at retail shall also be marked.

This act plainly defines renovated butter. So far as the act goes, what Mr. Briggs says RIGHT he is armed with the facts.

Absurdity is Obvious.

But as a matter of fact he either intentionally or by not being fully informed, misstated the facts. For any marketman will tell you:

Fourth—That renovated butter is rancid, or old butter—butter which has become too strong to sell otherwise—which has been melted, mixed with fresh milk or cream and rechurned. It commands a lower price than fresh butter, and rightly. For it is not fresh butter and not as good.

It is easy to see that this must be so. Fresh butter at a given time, we will assume, is selling at forty-two cents a pound. Any single pound of fresh farmer's butter, therefore, would command that price at retail.

But the renovating process costs something. Therefore Mr. Briggs would have the housewives of Boston believe that the butter men take butter which is worth forty-two cents a pound, put it through a more or less costly renovating process and then sell it to the consumer at thirty-five cents a pound.

The absurdity is obvious.

Do not understand me as crying down the merits of renovated butter. It is all right in its place. But renovated butter is not fresh farmer's butter, mixed up into large firkins, as Mr. Briggs would have us believe. It is rancid butter, rejuvenated by a patent process.

Renovated butter is good food, pure and sweet—all right in its place. But it is not as good as fresh butter.

Mr. Briggs made another statement at this meeting which surprised me. But this second statement gratified me personally, and was a tribute to the AMERICAN.

As to Egg Values.

He said, in defending the cause of cold storage (and in this cause I am no ally, for cold storage is a splendid institution):

"Some time ago, you will remember, eggs were being sold at Boston at twenty-four cents a dozen. I bought some of those eggs near my home in Chelsea. They were storage eggs. But I want to say to you ladies those eggs were better than the fifty-five cent eggs on the market at that time."

That is what Mr. Briggs said. He did not name the AMERICAN, nor the Housekeepers' League. But he obviously referred to the egg war which the League, back by the AMERICAN, successfully conducted a few weeks ago, when eggs were brought down to twenty-four cents all over the city—where they still are.

The first statement of Mr. Briggs is the truth. I repeatedly stated at that time that the twenty-four cent eggs were the best storage eggs on the market. And the best storage eggs are the equal of good fresh eggs. But Mr. Briggs at that time repeatedly declared—unless the newspapers misquoted him—that the twenty-four cent eggs were selling were a second grade stock, not selected, and not the equal of the best storage eggs.

I am glad to see Mr. Briggs correct himself on this point. He did an injustice to the Housekeepers' League and to himself. But he does another injustice to the housewives of Boston when he uses such arguments as he used yesterday to defend the cause of renovated butter.

All Right in Its Place.

Mr. Briggs' subject was "New England's Food Supply." He defended cold storage, and renovated butter. I agree with him, as I always have, on the cold storage question. Cold storage is a valuable institution. I also agree with him that renovated butter is all right in its place. But I wish to correct his statement that it is the product of odd lots of fresh farmers' butter.

WOMEN PARADERS CAN FOIL HORRID MEN

(The police of Washington have unearthed a plot to unloose a horde of mules during the suffrage parade on March 3.—News Item.)

By HANK.

A "well developed plot," they say, has just been neatly laid
To cause a bolt and badly jolt the suffragist parade;
Some horrid men divined the scheme, which isn't very nice.
No gentleman would ever plan to fill a street with mice.

But should the ladies wish to balk, and foil the schemes of man,
We here devise (we're awful wise) a deep and clever plan;
Wear any sort of dress you like from crinolines to kilts,
And you'll agree that safe you'll be if you parade on stilts!

A consignment will be sent to the United States sub-treasury in Boston soon.

"DEATH TO SPAIN," CRY CUBAN RIOTERS

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—Shouting "Death to Spain," Cubans engaged in a riotous demonstration against Spaniards last night at a crowded ball of the Clerks' Club, and only fast, bold generalship on the part of the police in command prevented serious results. The race war scores of prominent Boston business and broke out when several Cubans protested professional men. The thousand was the against the presence of a number of Spaniards. guest of honor at the ball. Among those present were Mayor Fitzgerald and his daughter Edward A. Horton, a life-long friend of the family, officiated.

G. O. P. REBELS OPEN FIRE IN STANDPAT WAR

The war inside the inner circles of the G. O. P. machine in Massachusetts is on today.

A band of fifteen Republican insurgents in the Legislature, who heard the call to arms of Senator Lombard Williams of Dedham, will open their bombardment of the G. O. P. machine at the State House following their refusal to "truckle" to the Republican leaders at the "parlor caucus" at Young's Hotel.

Here's the first broadside of the new rebellion, from the lips of Senator Williams, who was formerly a staunch machine man and who valiantly supported Senator-elect John W. Weeks:

I have never been a kicker, but it would seem as if after the disastrous campaigns of the past three years that our alleged Republican leaders ought to profit by their experience.

The cause of the insurrection was a notice sent out by the Republican State Committee for a standpat conference with certain Senate and House chairmen on certain legislative bills. The State Committee made up a list of a few selected speakers, including Speaker Cushing of the House and President Greenwood of the Senate. In telling why he headed the first storm in the Republican party since the Half Moosers lined up, Senator Williams said:

I object to the method adopted by the State Committee in picking out from the twenty-six Republican Senators and 156 Republican Representatives a select few to put their feet under the mahogany and tell the rest of us what to do.

In the face of three consecutive defeats in this State—losing the Governorship three times—it seems to me as if it is about time for the Republican State Committee to get into closer touch with the voters and consult the ones who know the Republican voters because of their contact with them, before they invite a few selected, self-styled leaders to map out a legislative program.

Kill Bill to Bar Sale of Cigarettes to Women Smokers

The Legislative Committee on Public Health today declined to interfere between the women and their cigarettes.

Representative Greenwood of Everett had a petition to prohibit the sale of cigarettes or tobacco to women. The committee in executive session voted "leave to withdraw" on it. But Senator Clark of Brockton (chairman) and Representative Bradstreet of Danvers reserved their right to dissent.

The same committee referred to the 1914 Legislature the petition of Representative Greenwood for a public drinking fountain in the State House.

The petition of Mayor Fitzgerald for creation of a bureau of diseases dangerous to the public health was disposed of as "ought to pass" legislation necessary.

The committee will report a bill on the petition of C. Clarke Towle that persons with delirium tremens, who are arrested, be given medical attendance. The committee also will report a bill to free the beach of Stoughton from paying anything toward dredging the Neponset River.

EILLS ADMITS KISSING LITTLE RUSSIAN GIRL

It is the custom for Russian girls of fifteen to salute men with a kiss, according to the testimony of the Rev. John Ellis in his suit for the modification of the divorce decree from Mrs. Harriet Coy Mills, giving her complete control of their little daughter, Olga.

Mr. Ellis desires the court to permit his daughter to visit him on weekends. The case has been argued before Judge Hardy in the equity session of the Suffolk Superior Court all week and Ellis took the stand this morning. He testified to several attempts of his wife to commit suicide while they were living together.

He stated that she had told him of seeing ghostly fingers. Another night she went to bed with a gamebie in her hand and tried to attach it to the gas. He told of her having tried to swallow a glass of wood alcohol, and again of starting for the river in her nightgown when they lived in Biddeford, Me.

Says Russian Girl Kissed Him.

He was asked on cross-examination if a fifteen-year-old Russian girl, who was a guest at the Ellis home, had not kissed him. He admitted this, and explained that it was a Russian custom and perfectly proper.

Dr. Gertrude T. Bullish testified yesterday in behalf of the husband that after a serious operation which had been performed on Mrs. Ellis she had become nervous, nervous and depressed.

"She told me her house was haunted," the woman physician declared. "That she heard noises and that she saw ghostly figures on the wall of her home."

Samuel H. Gilman, of whose house in Arlington Mrs. Ellis and the child were seized, testified he told Mr. Ellis he thought he saw the little girl in the window of the house upstairs calling: "Papa, Papa." asked Mr. Ellis' counsel.

"The girl was at the window at one time," said the witness.

Mr. Gilman said he told Mr. Ellis that Mrs. Ellis was at a lunch room some distance away. Mr. Gilman also said that twenty or thirty people gathered because of the disturbance.

An adventure of the famous Captain Kettle

BY CUTCLIFFE HYNE

CAST OF CHARACTERS

| | |
|---|---|
| Hamilton Fairfax | A shipping clerk |
| Amy Rivers | His fiancee |
| Captain Patrick Cambel | A schemer |
| Captain Owen Kettle | An adventurer |
| Theodore Shelf | Rich and unscrupulous |
| Mrs. Shelf | With social ambitions |

What Has Gone Before

Captain Cambel, who has seen many adventures in many lands, creates a mild sensation in London society. He surprises his host, Mr. Theodore Shelf, one day, by reminding him of an escapade in Barcelona. Shelf is at the head of Mormouths, Rivers & Shelf, an apparently prosperous shipping firm, but one really in a bad way financially. Cambel tells Shelf that he alone knows of a deep ship's channel into the Florida Everglades. Shelf hints that the two can turn this knowledge to gain by a dangerous coup.

Mrs. Shelf has a serious clash with her husband over her extravagances. She pays no attention to his orders to retrench. Shelf unfolds to Cambel his plans to utilize the Everglades passage. It is to charter a ship, load it with specie, let the ship be lost—but have the specie saved.

Now Go on with the Story

"Been carrying any more pilgrims from Port Said to the Morocco coast in irons?" he said.

PART I.

"HOW lost?"

Mr. Shelf mopped his fore-head again. "Don't stammer," he ashed. "Don't steamers have and accidents which—cause them to blow up?"

"Such things have been known. But it's rather rough on the crew, don't you think?"

"Oh, poor fellows; but a sailor's life is always hazardous. Indeed, what can he expect with wages at their present ruinous rate? Ship owners must live."

"Oh, you beauty!" said Patrick Cambel.

"I must ask you to refrain on these comments, sir. But tell me, before I go any further in this confidence, am I to count upon your assistance?"

"That depends upon many things. To begin with, there'll have to be modifications before I dabble. I'm not obtrusive, in squeamish about human life—my own or other people's. On one occasion I bagged my man because he had twice shot at me. Still piracy, complicated with what practically amounts to murder, is an art which I haven't trafficked in as yet, and, curious to relate, I don't intend to begin. Your scheme is deliberate, in its coldblooded silence, but it would look better if it were toned down a trifle. By the way, better help yourself to a drink. Your nerves are in such a joggle that I fancy you'll faint if you don't. I'd noticed lovely tie-ribbon on your evening dress. Hombut—that's a second mate's slip—four inners, if it's a drop. Apparently you're used to this. By the way, what honorarium do you propose I should take for engineering this piece of rascality in your favor?"

"I will give you £500."

"Now, would you really? Not even guineas?"

"Mr. Campbell, I'll make it a thousand. There!"

The Captain Is Confident

"Mr. Theodore Shelf, when a monkey wants a cat to pull chestnuts for him out of the fire, he first has to be stronger than the cat. You don't occupy that exalted position. In fact, I have the whip hand of you in every way. We need not particularize; but you can scan the items for yourself. Now I'll make you an offer—half of all the plunder and entire control of everything."

"My God, do you want to ruin me?"

"I don't care that the least if I do. Your welfare doesn't interest me. My services are on the market with a prix fixe. You can take 'em or leave 'em. That's flat."

Shelf burst into a torrent of expostulation, exciting himself more and more until he went on, till at last he stood before the other, with gripped fist and the veins rigid down his neck, inarticulate with fury.

Cambel heard him out with a contemptuous smile. But when the man had stormed himself into silence, then he spoke.

"When one trades in life and death the brokerage is heavy. You have heard my offer. If you don't like it say so without further palaver, and I'll leave you now—with your conscience, if you have a rag of such a commodity left."

"You may sit where you are," replied Shelf sullenly.

"Well and good. That means to say my terms are accepted; I'll join you to them later. But for the present let me observe to you something else, so that there may be no misunderstanding between us. I've been rambling up and down the world half my life, and I've met blackguards of most descriptions in every knighthood place from Calino to Port Said—forgers, thieves, murderers of nearly every grade of proficiency—but they say that the prime of everything gets to London, and I verily believe now that it does, for, by Jove, you are the most pernicious scoundrel of all that collection."

Shelf Gets Angry

"Sir," clouded Shelf, "am I to listen in these foul insults in my own house?"

"Oh, I quite understand the obligations of bread and salt, but you are beyond the pale of that. You are a noxious beast that ought to be stamped out. But you can be useful, so I shall hire myself out to be useful to you. But I have brought these unpleasant facts under your notice to let you understand that I have stepped you up from horns to hoof, and to point out to you that I wouldn't give a plaster for your most sacred word for a mess of pottage. I'll be bound to one another in this precious scheme by community of interests alone. And if you swindle me, my boy, I'll only look out for the consequences if you try to do. I never yet let a score stand."

"We're Arcades ambo, rascals both, only we're different varieties of rascals. I know you pretty thoroughly, and if you don't know me as well, possibly you will before we're done with one another."

"And now, if you please, we'll go into minuter details of this piece of villainy and sketch out definitely how we are to steal this half-a million to spede on this valuable cruise—without committing most murder than is absolutely essential to success."

The Tempting of Captain Owen Kettle

"IF one night judge from the impudent majesty of your office appoint-ments," said Patrick Cambel, taking one of the big chairs in Shelf's inner sanctum, "your firm is doing a roaring big business."

Mr. Theodore Shelf seated himself before his desk and began sorting out some papers. "The turnover," he said evasively, "is enormous. Our operations are most extensive."

"Extensive and peculiar," commented Cambel.

"But I regret to say that during the last eighteen months the firm's profits have seriously decreased and the scope of the business done has narrowed. I take credit to myself that this diminution is not due to any incapacity of mine on my part. It is entirely due to no account of the times, the lazy greed of the working classes, and the fierce rivalry of trade agitations. The series of strikes that we have had to contend against is unprecedented."

"Is it? Well, I don't know. There have been labor bothers all down through history, and I fancy they'll continue to the end of time. If you recollect, there was a certain Egyptian king who once had troubles with his bricklayers, and I fancy there have been similar difficulties trotting through the centuries in pretty quick succession ever since. Of course, each man thinks his own employer the most unreasonable and grasping that have ever been, and London times no record began. That's only natural, but I might point you to ten that you aren't in the worst way. Any country banker's been upset in the Red Sea so far, and it may be that a certain operation in the Mexican Gulf will prove up the wheels and set it running triumphantly, rumble if you like, Mr. Shelf, but don't make yourself out

BARE FAMILY SKELETON IN DU PONT CASE

DOVER, Del., Feb. 5.—Disclosures of a family skeleton were expected if a bill to change the name of Alfred Victor du Pont, eleven-year-old son of Alfred I. du Pont, millionaire vice-president of the Du Pont Powder Company, came before the Legislature today for reconsideration as was expected. It is believed the request will be lost if the bill is reconsidered.

The House passed the bill unanimously and an effort was made to have it introduced through the Senate. But it struck a snag when Senator Gormley, Democrat, of Wilmington, asked that action be deferred until he "could look into the matter."

The significance of the whole thing lies in the general belief that Alfred I. du Pont is back of the affair as a move against his divorced wife, Neelie Gardner du Pont, mother of the boy with whom the child lives. The bill changes the name of the child to Dorsey Cassevoy du Pont, after the mother's family.

The bill was brought to Dover by Thomas Bayard Heisel, attorney for Maddalene du Pont Hancroft in the suit for divorce brought against her by John Hancroft, Jr., in Wilmington a year ago. Young Hancroft got a divorce on statutory grounds.

FEDERAL AGENTS FIND ALARMING CONDITIONS IN HUB VICE INQUIRY

BOSTON IS MORE CORRUPT THAN NEW YORK

That is the unqualified verdict of secret service agents sent by the Department of Justice to investigate conditions here.

The Federal investigators take issue with the claims of the Boston police department so far as vice statistics go. They say that in proportion to the relative populations of the two cities New York is more moral than Boston.

This criticism by experts, after two weeks of local investigations, covers territorial matters. Everybody, or most everybody, has the idea that Boston has always been more orderly than New York.

The Federal officials say it probably is so far as general conduct is concerned, but that better facilities for behavior life here, but they say the city's "underworld" is more wide open at present than is fair. Of which Manhattan has long been famed.

They say evidence of police graft and protection can be easily detected by the strange investigator. They admit that the Police Commissioner and other executives of the departments are honorable and sincere, but that subordinate officials in different divisions are obviously corrupt.

The service men report that the most and vilest women and procurers prowl out of their barter of young girls are strongly organized in Boston.

They say that scores of a certain class of men, are quartered in the South End of the city; that they are defiant and busy; that they congregate nightly in considerable number in several conspicuous South End cafes and hotels, where they plot for the sacking of fresh victims and roll in their ill-gotten earnings.

What Agents Find.

FALSE PROMISES OF MARRIAGE, FAKE MARRIAGE CERTIFICATES, KIDNAPING, FORCED IMPRISONMENT, THE TAKING OF REBELLIOUS VICTIMS CLOTHING AND THE LOCKING UP OF DRESS are only a few of the methods which Federal officials say the auto-de-fe traffickers are at present definitely resorting to in Boston to trap working girls.

An alarming feature of the information supplied by the Federal investigators is that the greater number of enslaved girls, many of them of grammar school age, are native born.

Stylishly dressed women of matronly appearance and sympathetic manner win the friendship and confidence of girls, tempt them in shops and stores with candy and theatre tickets, take them to the theatre a few times, and then, after absolute trust of the unsuspecting victim is won, they are invited to some fashionable and harmless looking home, where they are drugged and started on a downward path.

Before she can escape the average victim is so downcast and discouraged, so absolutely disgraced, that she is willing to go anywhere but home. It is while in this mood that a girl is shipped to other cities.

Here is what a secret service agent who has studied conditions in Boston has to say:

We have found alarming conditions in some of the tenderloin sections of Boston. Understand at the outset that we are powerless to root out, correct or to prosecute local offenders. That is not within our jurisdiction. The Boston police alone have that power.

Our campaign is confined to interstate violations of the Mann act, in pushing for indictments. But in Boston and girls we naturally are led to the heart of the underground, and we have found vice rampant right here in Portland Boston.

"Police Claims Absurd."

We don't care what the statistics or the reports or the boasts of the local police department may be, and, what is more, we do not refer to those appalling conditions in any spirit of criticism, nor with any desire to antagonize. On the contrary, our only aim is to co-operate with the local authorities or with any organizations which will help us stamp out this flourishing and growing national evil.

BUT WHAT IS THE SENSE OF CLOSING OUR EYES TO CONDITIONS THAT ACTUALLY EXIST? Tor Boston police, I understand, claim that there are less than a dozen houses of questionable character in Boston at the present time, and that the streets are practically rid of certain women. These claims are absurd on the face of the fact we have discovered after a few weeks' investigation here.

It may be true that there are less than a dozen of the old-style houses of ill-fame, where the madams, pianos and scores of a far more vicious type of female, where a system of operations governs the actions of a circle of girls and young women by means of the telephone.

The up-to-date offender of this class does not furnish a house and stock it with victims as of old. She has but upon a safer and less public plan. She has a lodging house in a protected quarter of the city. Patrons telephone her, and she tells them the names of a number of young women whose lodgings are scattered all over the city, or even in the suburbs, who are ready at her beck and call.

Calls for an Inquiry.

In this way there is no danger of raids. It may be that the parties most in need, but she gets her commission, and it is usually a heavy one, because women of this kind generally have a wealthy clientele. Here is where this practice is even more vicious than the old method. It involves a girl who perhaps would never dream of being an occupant of a professional resort, girls who are on the telephone lists but others who are underpaid in factories and stores, and it is deplorable how many of these are now directly and indirectly concerned in the workings of Boston's underworld.

If the local police officials want the data which we have in our possession concerning local conditions, they are welcome to it. The facts show the absurdity of their claims concerning vice conditions in Boston. Just let the officials appoint a Vice Commission and put a couple of our fellows, who are familiar with conditions as it, and I'll guarantee that we will POINT OUT FROM FIVE HUNDRED TO A THOUSAND QUESTIONABLE RESORTS IN BOSTON WITHIN A RADIUS OF A QUARTER OF A MILE.

If the police officials are so sincere, why don't they clean out the numerous resorts that like Columbus avenue, West Concord street, Harrison avenue and streets in the Back Bay which are supposed to be high class?

What about fake fortune-telling and massage apartments? What about the lodging houses which are filled not with male lodgers for a blind, but which have rooms and apartments used to violate the law?

Has Heard Confessions.

I have patronized South End cafes and hotels where I have eaten and drank with these men and women. I have seen their methods and heard their manner of procedure. I have heard their gossip exchanged at table. I have heard the confessions of girls who have been trapped by methods which do not come within the scope of interstate traffic.

WHAT SECRET SERVICE AGENT FINDS IN HIS INQUIRY IN BOSTON

What is the sense of closing our eyes to conditions that actually exist? Boston is in many ways worse than New York.

The facts show the absurdity of many claims concerning vice conditions in Boston.

Just let the citizens of Boston appoint a vice commission and put on it a couple of us fellows who are familiar with conditions, and I'll guarantee that we will point out from 500 to 1,000 questionable resorts in Boston within a radius of a quarter of a mile.—SECRET SERVICE AGENT ON BOSTON CONDITIONS.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN SLAIN BY FIRE OF MEXICAN ARTILLERY

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—Between twenty and thirty women and children were killed in the bombardment of the town of Coconla, state of Guerrero, by Federal artillery Tuesday, according to a telegram received today by the Minister of Gobernacion in the State.

Insurgents in Guerrero had seized Coconla as a stronghold and had fortified the town. Federals with artillery massed upon the town and demanded its surrender, but the rebels refused. A note of warning was sent to the inhabitants, but they refused to leave their homes, thinking the rebels could protect them. The bombardment lasted ten hours and not a building in the town was left undamaged. Altogether more than 500 persons were killed.

NOSTRILS AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD? TRY MY CATARRH BALM

Instantly Clears Air Passages; You Breathe Freely; Dull Headache Goes; Nasty Catarrhal Discharge Stops.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lie awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

SELECT SITE FOR BAY STATE AT EXPOSITION

The following telegram from Charles G. Moore, president of the Panama Exposition Company, was received by Governor Foss this morning:

Eugene N. Foss, Governor.

I have the honor to inform Your Excellency that the ceremonies of the selection of the site for the Massachusetts building at the Panama Pacific International Exposition took place today (yesterday) in the presence of an enormous crowd among which were a large number of members of the Massachusetts Society of San Francisco. Ceremonies were preceded by a luncheon tendered by the State, city and exposition officials, representatives of the army and navy, representatives of the Massachusetts Society and many other prominent citizens.

The luncheon was followed by a review of the troops at the presidio, after which the ceremonies took place on the site selected. The deed to the site was presented to Colonel Goethals, chairman of the commission, who then placed the American flag on the site and took possession in the name of Massachusetts. The Massachusetts State flag was hoisted on the site and greeted with loud applause, after which the assembled crowd gave hearty cheers for the State of Massachusetts, for yourself and for the Massachusetts commission.

Your commissioners have endeared themselves to all of us and we beg to express our appreciation of your appointment of such worthy representatives of your great State. We assure you fully realize the magnitude of this national enterprise and what it means to America's material and patriotism generally and to the material interests of Massachusetts in particular.

CHARLES C. MOORE.

Never Been Kissed Though Wedded for 8 Years, Says Bride

BALTIMORE, Feb. 5.—Mrs. Theresa E. Deems, twenty-two years old and comely, when asked in court if she didn't want to kiss her husband said she replied:

"I don't believe wives should kiss their husbands; I don't believe anybody ought to kiss."

Mrs. Deems said she had never been kissed, nor even by her parents, and that she would not kiss her child. George W. Deems, the husband, was paroled on the charge of non-support of his wife and child, who is seven years of age. They have been married eight years.

ANNE MORGAN IS STORMED BY 'SPUGS'

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Miss Anne Morgan's generalship as the head of the army of "spugs," was put to a severe test when she was confronted with the problem of trying to care for 1,500 spugs and their young men friends at a dance in the Metropolitan Life Assembly Hall, which accommodates only about 1,000. Nearly four hundred disappointed "spugs" were left out in the cold wind and compelled to wait their turn to get in.

JAPANESE DIET IS IN A TUMULT

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—By a majority of 254, the Japanese Diet today voted a lack of confidence in the government and recessed for five days. The vote was taken amid tumultuous scenes, and was brought about by dissatisfaction with the budget prepared by the Premier.

HARVARD SEVEN PLAYS GREEN AT ARENA TONIGHT

The Harvard hockey team will play Dartmouth in the Boston Arena tonight, after dropping the Green from Harvard's football schedule there has been much speculation about the hockey relations between the colleges and this has been increased because of the strong seven which represents the Hanover College.

Dartmouth men will be out in full force to give their encouragement to the team. It should be an exciting contest, judging by the form shown by both teams. Dartmouth held Princeton to a 3 to 2 score on January 4 and its form was a most pleasant surprise to Dartmouth men.

The team is composed of practically all former High School boys of Greater Boston and it was only when the final song sounded that the Tigers were sure of victory. The team has been in Boston since Saturday and the daily practice at the Arena indicates that the men travel at too speed and are in fine condition to make Harvard travel at too speed to beat them.

TIME TRIALS FOR THE TUFTS TEAM TODAY

Time trials for the selection of the Tufts College relay team will be held this afternoon under the direction of Coach McDonald. The men who represented Tufts in the South Armory meet, Teele, Flint, Mansfield and Sterling, and easily defeated the Massachusetts Aggie runners, will compete for places again, as will Whippen '15, McClellan '16, and the members of the freshman relay team, which last week defeated Medford High at the Boston College meet.

Besides entering a relay team to run against Vermont, Tufts will send Streeter '15 and Cosgrove '14 in the dashes, and Tangaldes in the shotput. Captain Atwood '15 will be entered in the handicap mile.

CORNELL TRACK TEAM TO MAKE LONG TRIP

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The Cornell track schedule for this season includes indoor relay races with college and athletic club teams for which the Cornell runners will go from Boston to Chicago and Washington during the next two months. The outdoor schedule, with the full track and field material in the different events, is as follows:

April 26, Pennsylvania relay carnival at Philadelphia; May 1, dual meet with Michigan at Ithaca; May 10, dual meet with Harvard at Cambridge; May 17, dual meet with Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; May 30 and 31, intercollegiate championship meet.

Captain Snowden, who has just returned from England, where he studied the English rowing methods, also said that Yale would not change its style of rowing from that used last year.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRIGON.

It seems as if every legislator on Beacon Hill has some sort of bill on hand affecting automobiles. By the time they get through tinkering with the motor laws at the State House the Massachusetts motorist will have to take a course in law before he is able to go out on the highway with his machine.

Yesterday they had a hearing on half a dozen bills and there are several more to be disposed.

The bill calling for a speed limit of twenty-five miles an hour found a number of representative motorists who favored it. The thirty mile limit if the law was to be changed. The contention of a number of the speakers was that under the present law providing twenty miles as prima facie evidence of speeding there is no enforcement and that a flat rate is needed to stop excessive speeding. Others said that the law now stands it is hard for the police to convict persons for over-speeding and therefore in speeding cases they bring charges of reckless driving.

The bill relative to limiting the weight and speed of trucks and increasing the registration fees will not be heard until Tuesday. The truck dealers, owners and users have appointed a committee which will hold a conference with the highway commission Friday. It is hoped to arrive at some understanding so that all parties can go before the committee with a measure that will be satisfactory.

Entries have already been pledged for the non-motor-stop run from Chicago to Boston, which is planned by the Chicago Automobile Club for next June. This is a day and night non-stop tour from June 25 to 28. Friday the miles over the drafted cars will run day and night, a change of drivers and observers being made at stated intervals. No one driver will be permitted under any condition to pilot his car for the entire distance.

Nothing similar to this reliability tour has ever been attempted, the course being a distance of 1,250 miles without a stop, except for gasoline and oil or necessary repairs. E. C. Paterson and F. H. Fish will put in Packards. There will also be the Alco, Loaler, Chevrolet, Marmon, Keeton, Case and Moline cars. There will be an eight-cylinder car in the run.

NELSON DENIES HE INTENDS TO QUIT THE RING

By JACK CONWAY.

MRS. OSCAR BATTLING MATHEW NELSON, until recently Miss Fay King, caused considerable joy in this drive world of ours the other day when she announced that her battle-scarred husband had decided to retire from the tanbark ring. The merriment was not due to the fact that the "Durable Dane" is not a popular boxer. It is far from being so.

There is hardly a boxer in the ring who is better liked than the gallant lightweight from Hegewisch. He has engaged in many a thrilling battle, has never quit to an opponent and has always been above board.

The public likes a game man but they do not like to see a favorite like Nelson battered around the ring by second and third raters, men whom the Nelson of of old would have whipped with ease. That is why the "rises" were edited at the announcement that Battling decided to lay the padded gloves on the shelf for all time.

The former king of the 135-pounders now announces that the newspaper writers failed to interpret Mrs. Nelson's statement correctly. He admits that she announced that he intended to quit the ring after he had conducted his present engagements, but the Battler says that his bookings will carry him almost up to July, and as a consequence he will be performing before the public for some time to come. Nelson also said:

"I will quit boxing and Mrs. Nelson will retire from the newspaper field on the second anniversary of our married life. We will then settle down for that 'love-in-a-cottage' stunt. The day following our marriage we made an agreement to work two years, for we are both still young."

It is, indeed, cruel. How could you do it gallant, "Durable Dane"?

* * *

MATT LEARY, the physical director at the Cabot Street Bath and Gymnasium, Roxbury, very rarely breaks into print. His motto is "If you can't boost, keep silent, but if you can boost, go the limit." Eddie Shevlin's appointment as teacher of boxing and assistant gymnasium instructor at Dartmouth College prompted Matt to say:

"I know Dr. John W. Bowler and have known him for years. He is a grand man with wonderful ideas. In selecting Eddie Shevlin, he could not have made a better choice if he had searched all over this country. I have known Eddie for several years. I have played handball with him and exercised in the "gym" and know what he can do in both. He is a very capable, clever boxer and from what I know of him he will prove a very competent instructor. With a man like Dr. Bowler guiding him, Dartmouth's new instructor is sure to prove the right man in the right place."

* * *

JOHNNY GALLANT of Chelsea has now got an idea that he is going to be some lightweight champion of New England. The rugged Chelsea battler says that he will prove that he is one of the best men of his weight in this section of the country when he clashes with "Irish Paddy" Callahan in a twelve-round contest at Manchester, N. H., Friday night.

Gallant is a strong, rugged boy, and is the hardest hitting lightweight in New England. If he defeats Callahan, Manager Gallagher of the Manchester boy will make an effort to match him with Steve Kennedy of Lawrence. If the latter is not willing to meet Callahan, Gallagher will sign Johnny to battle "Ous-Round" Hogan.

Callahan is scheduled to arrive in Boston from Brooklyn today and will go to Manchester in order to finish his training.

TINKER SAYS KLING IS OUT OF BASEBALL

CINCINNATI, Feb. 5.—In a letter received by President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati National League Baseball club, Manager Joe Tinker announced that he had abandoned all efforts to obtain the services of Johnny Kling, the former Boston National manager and catcher, for the Cincinnati team. He also said in the letter that he was convinced that Kling would not play professional ball next season.

MAYOR FAVORS CARLISLE AND GREEN BATTLE

Frantic efforts are being made to arrange a game between Dartmouth and Carlisle to be played in this city. The plan is being backed by Mayor Fitzgerald, who is a staunch admirer of the athletic teams at Hanover.

It is planned to play the game either at the stadium on the day that Harvard meets Princeton at Princeton, or else at Franklin Field, where a mammoth stadium is to be erected by the city for schoolboy athletics.

Dartmouth would probably refuse to play at the Harvard Stadium, as the followers of the Green would not accept any favors from the University on the other side of the Charles.

There has also been some talk about Dartmouth building a stadium of its own in Boston. This plan has the backing of a number of men prominent in Dartmouth's athletic councils. Mayor Fitzgerald had the following to say about the Dartmouth situation:

The turning down of Dartmouth by Harvard means more to Boston than may appear on the surface. The Dartmouth game brings thousands of dollars to Boston every year. People come from all over New England to see the game and they spend their money here and spend it freely.

If Harvard is to drop any college this year it ought to be Princeton. The Princeton game is not, by any means, as interesting to Bostonians as a game between Harvard and Dartmouth.

Then again, the turning down of Dartmouth is bound to have a bad effect on Boston. The people all over New England must feel that Harvard and Boston have no use for the smaller New England colleges, and no end of hostility to the city might be aroused. This would hurt Boston's business considerably, for sentiment is often apt to cut a considerable figure in business.

I do hope that a Dartmouth game can be arranged to take place in Boston next Fall.

BOWLING NOTES

One of the features of the Elite League this season has been the rapid strides taken by Gill's Specials. The team started the season under the name of Acme A. A., but this club withdrew the team and Gilbert Wood put the boys right back in the running. They took the name of the Gill's Specials, and were forced to forfeit eight points, but from then on they secured last place. From that position they have moved into second place.

* * *

The tournament now running at Miller's Hopkins alleys in Camden, Pilda is proving a success. The boys found the new pins pretty tough during the first two nights, but are settling down gradually. The single pin pickers will hold their session tonight. Among the entries is that of Herman Appacher, who dropped, eighteen at the Lawrence tournament last Spring, and who has a good chance of winning tonight.

* * *

By the way, Appacher is leading the individuals in both the Elite and A. O. U. Leagues. Some boost to boil.

Secretaries of Greater Boston bowling leagues are requested to hustle in their notes for the next number of the "Budget," which will be published next Monday.

Arlington-Melrose to Meet in Hockey Clash February 28

Manager Ralph Stiles of the Arlington High School hockey team and Lester Woodland, manager of the Melrose team, have agreed to terms and the teams of these two schools will battle at the Arena on February 28 at 8 p. m.

Arlington and Melrose are the greatest rivals on the ice in this section and a game between them is always a big card. They have already played one game this season which resulted in a tie score. Arlington is at present leading the Interscholastic Hockey League and is scheduled to play Melrose on March 1 but this game will probably be held over until a later date.

Irish-American A. C. Relay Team to Race B. A. A. at Games

Another change has been made in the B. A. A. meet program. Colonel George H. Billings learned a few days ago that the Pastime A. C. would not send over a relay team to run against a B. A. A. team Saturday. He immediately sent a wire to Lawson Robertson asking the Irish-American A. C. to take the place of the Pastime A. C. and send on a team.

The Winged Fist committee responded quickly and willingly accepted the chance. The B. A. A. team will not be the same as that which met the Irish-American team at New York a few weeks ago.

ZBYZSKO-LEMLE MATCH SHOULD BE A THRILLER

Promoter Rohrer said today that Lemle was signed at Billings, Mont., and it was a matter of time before he would be with us. He is waiting at Billings for the completion of the arrangements with him [illegible] order to prepare for [illegible] match.

Lemle made a good impression on all that appeared here with Turpin recently. He displayed wonderful strength. Upon one of the occasions when [illegible] Zbyszko and Lemle gave an exhibition of wrestling the latter showed a marked improvement over his former self. Lemle will endeavor to make a different match [illegible] combination of the best holds of catch-as-catch-Roman and catch-as-catch-can style.

Zbyszko began wrestling in this country [illegible] earned many fine points of the game, but Americans like to see him [illegible] with what he has mastered, however, and will arrange several good matches for him before he will finish his training to teach him more about the catch-as-catch-can style.

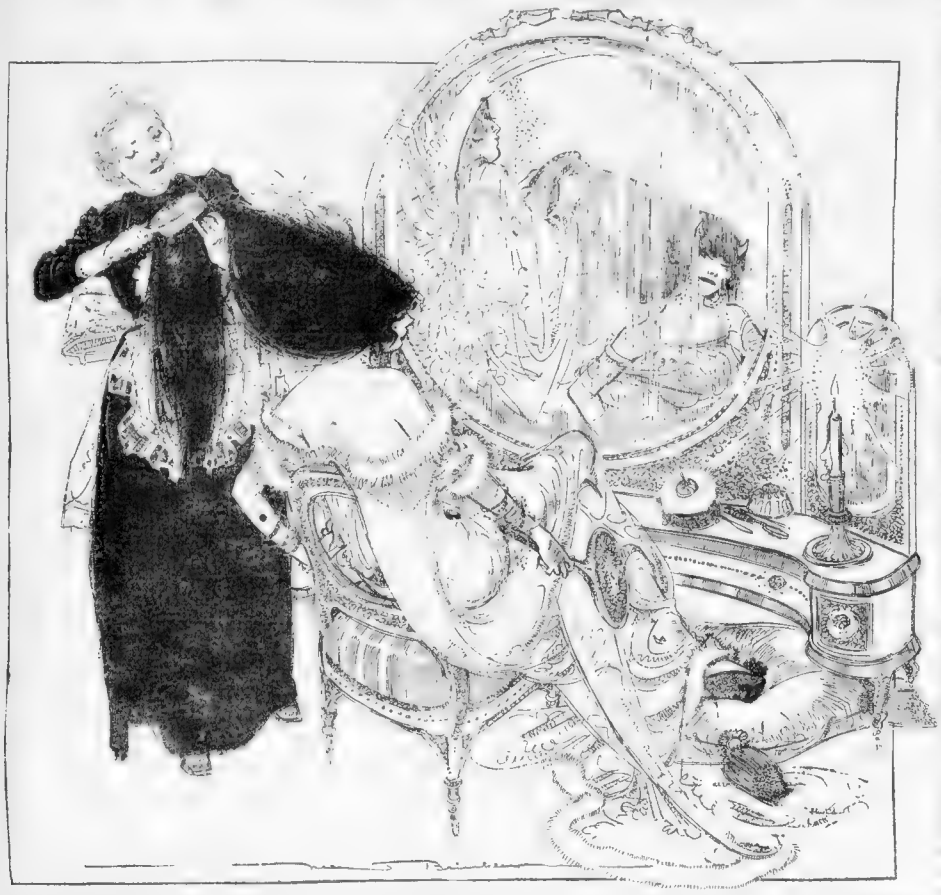
"Oh, Wad Some Power the Giftie Gie Us To See Oursel's as Ithers See Us"---By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal Examiner



"The Milady, who is outwardly perfection and dreams to herself, if the looking glass would reflect her as the world sees her, would see a horned demon, while if the homely drab-colored Maid could see herself as one and perhaps many see her, she would see an angel with such wings as never were."

THIS pic isn't always so! You may break any rule an you will but the little spiritual rule of a good thing to wish for desperately.

No matter what a perfect blue stone you are, there is most always a bit of a scratch on one of your facets that it might do your soul good to see. A scratch that is plain and deep to the eye of your dearest neighbor.

You and I know women lovely of skin and eye and hair, whose heart-cores are an insect and lovely in texture as their flawless surface. They are what they seem to be. The faithful image of the creature that their amorous mirrors give them back is the self-same one the world about them knows.

You and I know mediocre people—colorless in soul as they are from arid face. They, too, are worth dreaming to be. As their mirror gives them back, so they are to the passersby.

But you and I too know the Milady who is outwardly perfection and dreams to herself, if the looking glass would reflect her through, but who, if her dressing glass could by some sorcery reflect her as her world thinks her, would see a horned demon—joyless of eye, unkind and selfish, bitter of heart!

If by some magic, she could see herself as others see her!

And the homely drab-colored maid at her back, patiently drawing a jeweled brush through a cloud of hair—you and I have known her, too. If she could turn and find the mirror made to her too—and we have it somewhere—maybe every one, sees her—a snow-white angel with such wings as never were, radiant of hair, lovely of face!

Maybe if you will slip up on your mirror some day, little maid, when it doesn't see you coming, find it face to face itself, that other looks at you—a dancing flash of gold!

Maybe you are a plain little mouse who yearns for looks and love, and you will see the girl that you are to your friends—a glorious tearing beauty.

Maybe you are a delicious-seeming bit of femininity—and the girl you will see will need a lot of making over!

TETRAZZINI ASKS PARDON FOR SLAYER

Because of a violin which he made in prison and presented to Mme. Tetrazzini, Charles Alberto found a powerful ally in the opera singer when his case came before Governor Foss and the Council for a pardon today. He is serving a life term at Charlestown for murder.

Mme. Tetrazzini was not present to plead for Alberto, but a letter from her, declaring he has already sufficiently atoned, was read. Prominent fellow-countrymen were on hand to plead his cause.

If the interest of the opera star, suddenly aroused by the gift of the musical instrument, is effective and Alberto is once more granted his liberty, he will receive the world possessed of a skill that few former convicts at Charlestown have had.

Alberto, a blacksmith, killed his wife in a fit of jealous rage September 1, 1909, in Springfield. He was found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to Charlestown for life.

He displayed an interest in musical instruments. His skill increased. He was assured that he would get an excellent position if he should ever be able to attain his freedom. He constructed all the violins used in the prison orchestra, and more than one of the instruments found their way to the outside world and were admired for their purity of tone and excellence of workmanship.

MELLEN AND B. & M. EMPLOYES HAVE A GET-TOGETHER TALK

Old age pensions, labor conditions, as regards hours of labor, the pay received, the condition of the Boston & Maine railroad stock and problems of operation in this State, New Hampshire and Maine were discussed thoroughly at a two-hour "get-together" meeting between President Mellen, Vice President Byrnes and about forty-five workers representing the labor organizations in the road's service. A series of similar meetings are to be held later.

BILL STOPS CUTTING OFF OF SERVICE FOR FAILURE TO PAY

Public service corporations will be unable to refuse service on the ground that a subscriber or customer has not paid a bill, without first obtaining a judgment, if a bill introduced in the House of Representatives to accompany the petition of Clarence W. Rowley becomes a law.

The bill also provides that no railroad corporation shall deprive a passenger of a ticket without first obtaining a judgment to the effect that such ticket has been unlawfully used.

JOHN A. BRADFORD SERVICES TOMORROW

The funeral of John A. Bradford, sr., four, of No. 89 Pembroke street, Boston, who dropped dead of heart disease in Newton square, will take place tomorrow afternoon, at the Waterman Chapel in Roxbury. Mr. Bradford was a descendant of Governor Bradford. He was a lover of animals, and in his coat business when a horse was worn out he had the animal sent to a rest farm.

WANTS LAW TO KEEP RAILWAY MEN SOBER

No employe of a steam or electric road will be allowed to go to work while under the influence of liquor, if a bill Senator Curtis has presented to the railroad committee becomes a law. Labor men declare the bonds have rigid rules on this matter, but Senator Curtis wants it a law.

THREE CARS LOST 2 HOURS IN TUNNEL

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 5.—A Baltimore & Ohio westbound train broke in two in the tunnel under the business district of the city, and for an hour three sleeping cars attached to the rear of the train were lost.

LONDON EXPERT WARNS AGAINST DEADLY PERIL

"It is almost enough to drive one to despair to see the way people refuse to take any heed to the imminent peril in which they stand!" exclaimed John Beardsley Webb, the London nerve specialist, who is interested in the introduction of the system into this city. "I feel just as though I had gone into a large factory and told the hundreds of people who were working there that the building was on fire and that they only had a few minutes to save themselves, and, instead of hurrying, they all turned around and grinned at me and then went on with their work.

"Nervous Debility is now so prevalent in the large cities of America that it is rapidly threatening to undermine the whole strength of the nation. The few or those who were working there that dwellers who escape nervous debility are fine, healthy specimens of humanity, and those who are run down in health from nervous debility point to such perfect examples and refuse to believe that the health of the nation is being undermined.

"Were the people in the cars as you go to work, watch the faces of those who sit around you in the theatre, glance at the expression on the faces of the people eating in the same restaurant, lastly look at yourself in the glass. See that sallow color to your face, notice those dark rings under your eyes and dull expression in your eyes. Do you see any health reflected there?

"There are two ways to relieve this nervous debility. One is a long rest, either in a sanitarium or on board ship; the other is Tonn Vita, a tonic which can be obtained in any drug store in Boston, and one bottle of which is equal to a month's stay in the best resorts in the world."

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

There was not much life to stock markets around the opening. Irregularity prevailed in New York and a dropping tendency in London. Stocks ruled steady in Boston, but business was quiet. By the end of the first hour most figures which figured in local trading were quoted lower. Granby was down a point and other losses were fractional. Copper warrants slumped in London.

United Shoe Machinery shaded a little in early transactions. One brokerage house said today about 'tis corporation: "United Shoe is today doing the largest business in its history, and freed by the Supreme Court from the worst scare of the government suit—the possibility of dissolution—there would seem to be nothing in the way of stockholders deriving the benefit of the company's large profits the last few years in the shape of "pork."

Spencer & Co. of New York announced this morning they have engaged $10,000,000 additional gold for shipment to Buenos Ayres.

The New York sub-treasury gained $450,000 from banks yesterday and since Friday has gained $4,250,000.

New York Prices Are Mixed.

The New York mixed general Metropolitan and American Can and Interborough-Metropolitan among the weakest issues in initial trading. The possibility of an investigation by the State of New York into recent dealings in Can caused selling of its common and preferred shares in large quantities.

Injunction proceedings in regard to subways weakened Interborough-Metropolitan. The list was unsettled. Among declines were Union Pacific ¼, Lizgett & Myers 1, American Smelting ¼ and Colorado Fuel & Iron ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅝ higher, but lost its advance and declined 1. Reading was ⅝ up, while Amalgamated gained ½. Steel began ¼ higher, but soon lost its advance and declined ¼ under Tuesday's final.

Canadian Pacific was ¾ lower on profit taking.

The curb was steady.

Americans in London were hesitant on professional trading.

Boston Exchange Seat Sales.

The Boston Stock Exchange is not under fire at the present time," says a New York newspaper, "but the brokerage business in that city during the last few years, and particularly during the last few months, has probably been as unprofitable as anywhere else in the country. There was a report from Boston yesterday that a seat on the Boston Stock Exchange had been sold for $14,500. The price at the precious sale was $23,000, and in the big speculative boom which preceded the 1907 panic the privilege of doing business on the Boston exchange was considered to be well worth the $30,000 paid for it. The decline in the price of New York Stock Exchange seats is proportionately less than that which has taken place in Boston."

To Reform New York Exchange.

The governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange will meet this afternoon to consider reforms and an important announcement is looked for after they adjourn. Reports will be made by sub-committees who have been considering changes suggested by Governor Sulzer.

He thinks that artificial stock manipulation should be punished, and that a law is needed which will clearly distinguish between proper sales and those made in combination to raise or depress share quotations. He wants strict laws dealing with the hypothecation of customers' securities. Short selling for improper purposes should be eliminated. It ought to be, he thinks, a penal offence to issue misleading prospectuses or advertisements about securities.

Gold at Premium in France.

It is reported from Paris that gold is at a premium of twenty cents on $100 in France now, and that yellow metal payments have been discontinued by banks in that country. The premium amounts to one-fifth of 1 per cent., or in other words, applying the restriction to the redemption of money on this side, a $100 bill is worth only $99.80 in gold.

It is reported that since banks ceased gold payments in only places in Paris where such coin can be obtained are branches of New York institutions. The peasantry of France have been hoarding gold because of war scares.

"There is a rumor that France is about to finance a big loan to Bulgaria which will be guaranteed by Russia.

Weak Copper Market in London.

The London copper market opened weak. Spot was off 17s 6d and forfeits 12s.

It is denied by big producing interests that they are individually or collectively attempting to restrict production, as some people have thought because of the falling off in tonnage from mines. They say the smaller yield in January was due to weather conditions.

One statement reads: "In the light of official predictions that the Amalgamated group of mines will this year be compelled to ship down various mines here and there, necessitating a reduction of 25,000,000 pounds from the 1912 yield, it would not be surprising if the year 1913 witnessed an actual decrease in the total output of all mines, notwithstanding some prospective increase from the porphyries."

Regarding the price of electrolytic, it is said that Amalgamated is still asking 16½ cents a pound and that its competitors have sold under that figure. Most of the recent demand has been for spot and March deliveries.

The copper metal market is dull.

Financial News in Brief.

Gold engagements to daybreak brought the exportation of gold to France and Argentina during the present movement up to about $20,000,000, and it is the understanding in financial circles that much more is to go. This has and little or no effect upon the money market so far.

According to Dun & Co. figures there were eight cities less failures in this country last month than there were in January, 1912.

Before Otto H. Kahn sailed for Europe he said: "I do not look for any great activity on the exchanges of Europe and America until the troubles in the Balkans is settled. On the whole our finances are now on an excellent basis, and we have every reason to be thankful."

The financial correspondent of Hearst newspapers cables from London that new offerings of securities are finding a poor market there, and that Canada especially is finding it difficult to get sufficient capital for the coming year. "Canadian Pacific's new stock," he says, "is heavily acting as a drag on the old. That Canada will have to curtail her building program this season seems to be the general expectation."

The expectation of Pennsylvania oil producers that the price of crude would go to $2.50 soon has been realized, and that figure today. Oil shares on the New York Curb are reflecting the rise in the price of the product by the way in which they are ascending. Continental oil went up 150 points yesterday, and Standard Oil of Kentucky rose 65. But expectations of "melon" cutting are also an influence.

In December Great Northern did a gross business of $6,548,000, an increase of $1,564,149 over the total of the corresponding month of the previous year.

OXFORD GIRL ENTERS VENUS CONTEST TODAY

Was Venus de Milo prettier at thirty than at sixteen?

Whatever was the most charming age of the greatest of world's beauties, it would appear that the Venuses of the present generation are mostly in their teens.

At least, that is the impression of the Venus Editor, Judging from the entries of candidates to date.

The latest seeker of honors in the Venus class is Miss Alcena Thibodeau of North Oxford, Mass. Alcena is sixteen, and her friends are enthusiastic over her beauty of face and figure. Miss Thibodeau writes as follows:

Editor AMERICAN:

I would like to enter my name in your Venus contest. I am sixteen years of age. My measurements are as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Age | 16 years |
| Weight | 112 pounds |
| Height | 5 feet 3 inches |
| Bust | 36 inches |
| Waist | 22 inches |
| Thigh | 24½ inches |
| Calf | 13½ inches |
| Ankle | 7 inches |
| Shoe | Size 3½ |

It seems to me that symmetry is the real test and that a fair decision couldn't be reached without photographs to be passed on by proper authorities.

I am a native of Portsmouth, N. H., but am stopping for about two weeks with my aunt.

EDITH M. CRANDELL.
No. 12 Ames street, Somerville.

ALZEMA THIBODEAU, sixteen-year-old Oxford girl, who enters Venus contest.

Somerville Girl Enters Race.

Editor AMERICAN:

I am very much interested in your competition and many of my friends want me to enter it. My measurements are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Age | 20 years |
| Weight | 142 pounds |
| Height | 5 feet 5 inches |
| Bust | 36 inches |
| Waist | 22 inches |
| Thigh | 24½ inches |
| Calf | 13½ inches |
| Ankle | 7 inches |
| Shoe | Size 3½ |

Two 'Most Beautiful' Women in America Hail From the West

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—According to C. W. de Lyon Nichols, a New York author, the two most beautiful women in America hail from the West. They are Miss Kathleen Elliott of Racine, Wisconsin, and Mrs. Hugh Roland French of California and Washington.

These American beauties were discovered by Mr. Nicholls at the recent Southern Relief ball.

Mrs. French is the daughter of former Consul-General to London Robert J. Wynne, and is the wife of Captain Hugh Roland French, an officer in the English army. During her residence in London, Mrs. French was known as "the most beautiful American," and King Edward once referred to her as such.

SEE MANTELL AS BRUTUS IN 'JULIUS CAESAR'

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

Another change in his somewhat extensive repertoire brought Mr. Mantell to the centre of the stage as Brutus in "Julius Caesar" at the Shubert last evening. As in most of his plays during the past eight days Mr. Mantell made the most of his opportunities and contributed a really attractive performance. Under this actor's guiding hand Brutus, austere and solemn, took on new dignity and played faithfully to the best traditions of the role.

One of Shakespeare's best dramas—possibly his best to popular appeal and melodramatic material—"Julius Caesar" naturally attracted a big audience. Even the predominating taste among playgoers for the straight away, modern play could not prevent keen enjoyment from a performance of "Julius Caesar," although in the case of serious minded starring actors it presents a certain difficulty in the selection of the most suitable role. Mr. Mantell made Brutus his choice and it gave no disappointment.

Not even the brilliant dramatic values in several of the other roles—and all of them were played by intelligent actors—threatened Mr. Mantell last evening. He was the dominating figure, as Brutus should be under any circumstance. But in takes a big man, strong in acting skill as well as theatrical instincts, to make the most of Brutus, and it was to Mr. Mantell's credit that he filled every requirement. Once again he exhibited a perfect control of his acting movements, and again he made of his wonderful voice stood by him in every situation.

Flanked by roles of almost equal strength and importance, face to face with an Antony of splendid courage and a keen knowledge of the role's demands, and sparring with a Cassius of compelling influence Mr. Mantell's Brutus was never in artistic danger. Here was an actor who realized his duties and never wavered in their performance. That Mr. Mantell made a deep impression upon his audience there was no doubt, for it was plainly marked in the hearty approval that showed itself vigorously at frequent intervals.

While there was nothing to regret in Mr. Mantell's Brutus, it may be reparted with equal propriety that Brigham Royce's Cassius, John Burke's Casca, Fritz Lieber's Antony, L'Estrange Millman's Tribunius and Guy Lindsley's Caesar were very much concerned in the success of the performance.

Mr. Mantell's production was ample in every way.

A Strong New England Man in President Wilson's Cabinet Would Be Good for New England and Good for the Country

Massachusetts has been held in the Democratic ranks for three years. Maine has been held in the Democratic ranks for two out of the last three years. She has had two Democratic United States Senators in that period. New Hampshire has a Democratic Governor and Henry F. Hollis, a Democrat, is leading the poll for United States Senate in that State. Rhode Island frequently elects a Democratic Governor and if she had a real Republican form of government and not the monstrous apportionment of representation which now disgraces her, Rhode Island would frequently elect a Democratic United States Senator. The Democratic vote has increased in Vermont and the Democratic party has been recently successful in Connecticut.

Although the Republican party has been worse in New England than almost anywhere else in the nation, and New England Republican leadership, secretly serving the non-partisan exploitrs of Wall Street, has wrecked the Republican party throughout the nation; yet, it is true that in more States of New England the Democracy has dared to be Democratic than in almost any other large section of the country.

Therefore, it is, that the AMERICAN suggests to President-elect Wilson the wisdom of putting into his Cabinet a powerful New England Democrat; a man who is powerful not because he is the agent of powerful special interests, but because he is strong in his own native talents and is strong in the confidence of the people.

Maine has such a man in Senator Gardner. Massachusetts has such a man in Governor Foss.

There is a peculiar reason why it would be appropriate for Mr. Wilson to summon Governor Foss to his Council. We are entering upon a period of tariff reform. That reform, on the manufacturing side of the question, affects New England interests more than the interests of any other section of the country. Governor Foss has been a pioneer in the agitation for more equitable tariff schedules. He has fought that issue for twelve years in Massachusetts and he has combined with it, as a complement of tariff reform, the idea of reciprocity, by means of which we can give the consumer the benefit of lower rates while at the same time we do not expose the American manufacturer to foreign laws which are partial to the foreign competitor.

Thus Governor Foss would bring to the President's council the ability of a shrewd, far-seeing New England man with New England's true point of view, which has been misrepresented in the national councils for years by her reactionary Republican leaders.

The People Can Neither Reward a Good President Nor Punish a Bad One, if the Amendment Passed by the Senate Becomes Law—But the "Interests" Can

When those political hirelings of Wall Street, Root, Penrose, Guggenheim and their fellow janissaries in the United States Senate, advocate a great constitutional change affecting the highest office in our country, the people have long since learned to presume that there must be something evil to them in the proposition.

Root, Penrose, Guggenheim and that type of Republicans are supporting a constitutional amendment to limit the holding of the office of President to one six-year term. The amendment has passed the Senate and is now to be acted upon by the House.

If the people will examine this scheme carefully, they will find that it is just such a device as might be expected when Root, Penrose, Guggenheim and their kind are supporting it.

The scheme of this amendment conceals a conglomeration of mean designs. Some of its supporters want to prevent Mr. Wilson from being re-elected, if he should prove a faithful President to the people. Some want to prevent the people from electing Theodore Roosevelt again, if in their wisdom they believe that the conditions call for him.

It is one of the boldest and most revolutionary attacks ever made upon the Constitution of the United States and upon the sovereign power of the American people.

It will take away from the American people one of their great sources of control of their greatest public servant—which is the power to say, when at the end of his first term he renders an account of his stewardship, "WELL DONE THOU GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANT, WE WILL CONTINUE YOUR STEWARDSHIP."

The greatest office on earth is the presidency of the United States. The power of bestowing it is the greatest power in the world. Are the people to be deprived of this power over a President serving his first term? If they cannot bestow upon him another term as a reward for his faithfulness, what power can they exert over him?

Wall Street always has its great rewards to bestow. If our President is a lawyer, Wall Street can give him a big corporation practice when his term is over. If he is a business man, Wall Street can give him big business connections.

WHAT CAN THE PEOPLE GIVE HIM?

If this amendment is adopted they can no longer reward him with a re-election, which is the greatest reward of all.

The motives of the most influential men behind this amendment are unpatriotic. They seek to accomplish exactly the opposite thing from that which the framers of the Constitution sought when they purposely provided that our Presidents might be re-elected. Jefferson [illegible]

The other boys are all laughing at you! I can't bother with you just now, anyhow, I'm so interested in this new breed of squirrels I've got! # Ignorance Still Blights Minds of Millions Despite Science -:-

The World Is Still Full of Superstitions and Errors Which Manacle the Human Faculties -:- -:-

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A VERY curious fact, filling a strange gap in the history of the infamous Emperor Nero, has just been brought to light at the Paris Academy of Inscriptions by M. Constans. Not only does it solve a historic puzzle, but at the same time it shows, in the most graphic manner, the wonderful influence once exercised by comets over the human imagination.

In the year 60 A. D. a brilliant comet made its appearance in the sky, and the Roman world was thrown into the state of nervous apprehension and vague terror which such apparitions always caused in those days. It probably made its entry suddenly like the mysterious "Comet A" of 1910, which, many readers will remember, shone like a plume of fire in the sunset sky at a moment when the astronomers were all looking in another direction for the oncoming comet of Halley.

In Nero's time nobody knew anything about the real nature of comets. There were no mathematicians capable of calculating their orbits, and the spectroscopes with which we now serenely proceed to analyze them and detect their gaseous secrets would then have been regarded as the machinery of witches and necromancers. Nevertheless, men had in those days very definite, though very erroneous, ideas about comets. They believed, among other things, that a comet foretold the death of some ruler who happened to be reigning in the year of its appearance.

Nero evidently felt that the blazing messenger in the heavens had its fiery eye fixed specially upon him, and as he had just begun to taste the delights of unlimited power he was in no mood to be suddenly translated from the earth. Accordingly, he cast about for a means of averting the peril. Very likely he was assisted by some astronomer, for the astronomers of that age were not scrupulous about lending their countenance to superstition, and, in fact, most of them were little better than astrologers, and they were probably as much afraid of comets as anybody else.

The device finally hit upon, according to M. Constans, was to reckon the year 60—the year of the comet—as having already expired as far as Nero's incumbency of the tribunitian office (which was the official sphere of the early Emperors) was concerned. Thus it was thought that dust might be thrown in the comet's eyes and that, finding Nero out of reach, it would either go away without a victim or content itself with some barbarian King. All that Nero had to do, after having ignored the remainder of the fatal year 60, was to issue a decree beginning a new principiate for himself with the year 61. This was done, and the consequent discrepancy has, until recently, greatly exercised historians.

It is difficult for us to comprehend, in our time, the state of mind which could lead a great ruler and his advisers to perform so childish an act. But let us not arrogate too much honor to ourselves on that account. For suppose that we had been living in the days of Nero—what would we have thought about it then? Is it not likely that we might have admired and applauded the sagacity of the Emperor who had shown himself able to defeat even the designs of heaven?

If there had never been a Copernicus, a Galileo, a Newton, a Laplace, a Herschel; if the telescope and the spectroscope had never been invented, the heavens would have remained as mysterious and as full of imaginary terrors during the nineteenth century as they were during the first century, and this now so brilliant twentieth century would be but the opening of another chapter in the history of the Dark Ages.

But the world is still full of superstitions and errors which manacle the human faculties. Science still offers discoveries that are decried and disregarded. Blank, stupid ignorance yet blights millions of minds. The great duty of all who are fortunate enough to possess a little light is TO SPREAD IT. Knowledge is of little use unless it be disseminated. Educate yourself, help, as best you can, to educate others, and you will be making the best use of your life and will render a return of the days of Nero impossible.

declared that the power of bestowing a re-election as a reward of faithful service would be much more conducive to good than to harm.

If a President is a bad President, six years is too long in which to suffer him. If he is a good President, six years may not be long enough.

The man whom the American people of their own free choice elect to be their President will never be their dictator. A dictator never arose out of the free choice of a healthy republic. When they came in the old republics and democracies they were the products of conditions and were not the free choice of a free people.

When conditions have made possible a dictator, no paper constitutions ever stopped him.

The Roots, Penroses and Guggenheims are serving masters who are creating conditions that their prototypes in the days of the democracies of Greece and the republic of Rome created before them, and those conditions are the fruitful soil of dictators, plutocracies and oligarchies and monarchies.

Those who dread a dictator should throw men like Root, Penrose and Guggenheim out of power and make their masters respect the law. Then there will never be any danger of a dictator or of any other evil revolution in this country.

But, under the pretence of preventing a dictator, let us not adopt a scheme, the whole purpose of which is to protect present conditions, which are undermining our republican virility and which if not arrested may produce a dictator in spite of constitutions.
